Easy, Mr Ford
Berlin-New York 5 Hours
The Cat Will Mew
When the Blade Falls

—By Arthur Brisbane—

AT CHESTER, PA., Henry Ford walked seven miles, then ran a hundred-yard race against a man half his age.

That proves extraordinarily good condition in a man past 60. But if Ford had an employe as important to him as he is to the industrial welfare of the United States, he would not allow that employe to do any 100-yard dashing. He would say: "Each year that you live your heart loses efficiency. Unaccustomed strain is dangerous. Be sensible."

And that is what 112,000 men, to whom Ford pays good wages, would like to say to Henry Ford. For their comfort it is said here.

A German automobile, propelled by explosives, attained in two seconds a speed of 62 miles an hour. Serious German scientists predict this "rocket" principle, applied to aeroplanes, will mean a Berlin to New York flight in five hours.

This sounds "impossible" to those without imagination. A speed of a thousand miles an hour might easily be attained by controlling the driving force of high explosives. An airplane thus driven would need no wings or a parachute to be released in time for the landing.

"Let Hercules do what he may, the cat will mew and dog will have his day."

You may add to that Shakesperean statement, let the Federal Reserve do what it may; the speculator will gamble and lamb will have his day.

"Call money," with which men gamble in stocks, is firm at 6 per cent. It was 4 per cent a little while ago. Still the lambs gamble. Stocks went up again yesterday. Brokers, cheered by promised restoration of the five-hour day, sent out the usual notices that don't mean anything. Cheerfulness reigned.

Agitation against public executions is started in France.

When a man is to be guillotined in Paris, crowds gather before daylight on the Place de La Roquette, where the guillotine stands, 100 yards from the entrance to the dark prison.

A crowd of women, men and boys shout and laugh, as the sun rises and some hated criminal is brought out.

And when the blade falls and the head drops into the basket, many rush to dip their handkerchiefs in the blood "for luck." Not exactly a "civilizing influence."

Dr. John D. Watson, a "behaviorist psychologist," if you know what that is, says a "reconditioning plant" should be established to put damaged minds in order.

Human minds, like worn automobiles and washing machines, could be renovated and the mind turned in any direction desired.

Behaviorist psychologists perhaps do not realize that the human mind is an old product, dating back through 1,000,000 years of human life, and 50,000,000 previous years of animal life.

You cannot change that ancient mechanism very easily. But you can give a fair chance to such mind as a man may have, with education, diet, exercise and sleep.

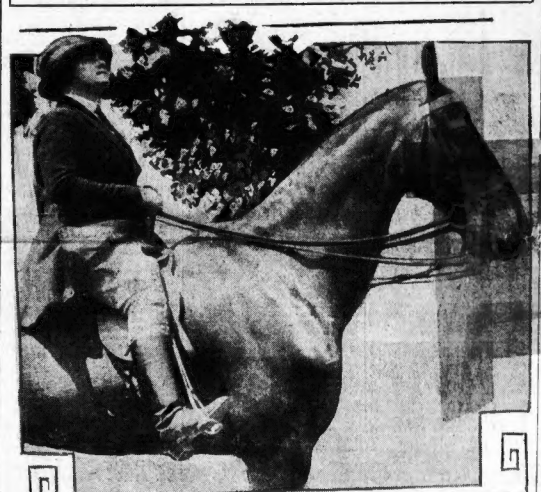
FULLER ASKS PUBLIC HEARING ON RUM CHARGES

HUB BRIDE OF EMBASSY OFFICER



DOUBLE WEDDING AT PARIS

Miss Muriel Harding Bliss, Boston society girl and daughter of Elmer Jared Bliss, head of the Regal Shoe Company, became the bride of Lieut. Joseph M. Glasgow, assistant military attache of the American embassy at Paris, at a civil ceremony in the 16th arrondissement, and a religious ceremony will follow tomorrow at the Church of St. Pierre de Chaillo, at which Ambassador Herrick will be among the guests. She is shown here enjoying her favorite sport.

DEMANDS FULL RUM PROBE

A thorough investigation, open to the public, to be conducted by a joint committee of House and Senate, into the State House rum charges was requested today by Governor Fuller in a message to the Legislature which was read before the House of Representatives.

The Governor cited stories of drunken parties in the State House, told publicly by William M. Forgrave, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, and referred to "very vague but broad charges" made by Greater Boston ministers in a letter to him.

To his message he attached the clergymen's letter, parts of which read:

"All good citizens of Massachusetts are burning with righteous indignation that law violation has been permitted to go unchecked un-

Old Sol Takes Coy Peek at Hub; Fair Sunday—Maybe!

Oh—the shock of it all! The sun peeping coyly down on soaked and sodden Boston, where eyes have become unaccustomed to sunlight.

And yet a possibility of rain in the day's span somewhere was in the prediction even as the sun spread its sparkly warmth.

The weather man declares the week-end should be clear and warm, however. And it certainly SHOULD be. But will it, even with the weather man's assurance? How do we know?

If it will help local spirits any, the Northwest section of the country has been warm for some days.

PAY MAN IN BIG GRAFT VICE RING CONFESSES; NAMES HUB OFFICIALS

A complete confession, involving at least one well-known public official, was made today to Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle in connection with the vice and graft ring inquiry.

The confession was made by a former "pay-off man" for a disreputable house proprietor, and is understood to contain the most important evidence the authorities have obtained since the start of the probe by Dist. Atty. William J. Foley.

The man is said to have revealed complete details of graft in which he participated for years, furnishing the names of those who gave him money and the names of officials to whom it was paid.

The former "pay-off" man is said to have gone right down the line, exposing everything, much to the elation of Dist. Atty. Foley and Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle.

SENATE VOTES SHOALS BILL AFTER FILIBUSTER

Washington, May 25 (AP)—Breaking a filibuster that had lasted for more than 24 hours, exhausting those who had carried it on, the Senate today adopted the conference report on the Muscle Shoals government operation bill.

Senator McKellar of Tennessee, physically exhausted, gave up his filibuster shortly after 11 o'clock, with the declaration that he could go no further. It was McKellar that started it at 11 a. m. yesterday.

There were cries of "vote," as McKellar sat down, but Senator

31 COLLEGES COMPETE FOR I.C. 4A TRACK TITLE

Harvard Stadium, May 25—Thirty-one American colleges represented by nearly 800 athletes began their attempt to wrest the I. C. 4A title from Stanford University at the Harvard Stadium this afternoon.

The track was somewhat soggy after the heavy rains, and few records were looked for.

That the title will go back again to the west coast seems almost certain. Stanford is a heavy favorite to repeat its triumph of last year, and the University of Southern California appears to be the best second on the field.

Coach Templeton is figuring on another victory, but states that every one of his big guns must register this afternoon to insure Stanford another title.

He feels that the muddy track will hinder the performances of his charges somewhat but, nevertheless, feels that his charges will overcome this obstacle.

But the Stanford big stars are not the only boys in danger of losing their powder, for the field in every event shows the favorites will be

CITY COUNCILLOR FINED FOR DISOBEYING COURT

City Councillor Michael J. Ward of Roxbury was fined $10 for contempt in Roxbury court today by Judge Joseph Palmer.

The fine resulted from the councillor's criticism of the records of Probation Officer Joseph Keene.

Councillor Ward hurried to City Hall, where he took steps to bring about an investigation of the probation office of the Roxbury court.

Ward appeared in connection with the case of Michael F. McCarthy of his district, convicted of drunkenness. He asked a fine instead of jail sentence, but Judge Palmer said the man's record required a jail sentence.

Councillor Ward then criticized the probation officer's records, and when the court told him he owed Keene an apology he refused to make it. The fine followed.

Bunions Leader Spikes Rumors of Trouble

By LELAND C. LEWIS
International News Service Special Correspondent

Suffern, N. Y., May 25—C. C. "Cross-Country" Pyle's "Ballad of Barking Dogs," the blank verse best seller of 81 cities and hamlets lacked but two chapters of completion as his 55 supermen pushed their steps today to Passaic, N. J., 20 miles east of here. The Marathon ends in New York City tomorrow night.

The youthful hero of the novel—one Andrew Payne from the unfertile farm lands of Oklahoma—who has amassed 3365.4 miles to his credit in 564:32:36 hours, held a comfortable lead and apparently safe margin of 1732:36 hours over John Salo, Passaic Finnish-American, who annexes the limelight for the day.

"I'm out to set the pace into the home town," Salo announced before the start at 10:30 a. m.

Payne, apparently untired from the ardor of the grind through California, Arizona, New Mexico, Texas, Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York, felt no qualms on the trek through New Jersey, the 13th state since leaving Los Angeles March 4.

"This talk of some of the boys pulling out because some fellows want to locate trouble is narrow-minded," Payne said. "To me it looks like an attempt to grab a lot of space in the papers.

"Whatever the program calls for I'll go through with," Payne continued, "and I know that any other of the boys who is fair-minded will do the same. This is a sporting event and as I have known Mr. Pyle to be a sportsman all along without favoring anyone in particular, I have gambled with him and know that I'll collect."

Pyle in a telephonic conversation from New York city with the writer spiked reports that "he was broke or that any contemplated move to obstruct the climax of the race would get his support."

"Lots of punches have been aimed at me," Pyle said. "Most of 'em have been below the belt, but I have shaken them off and am still far from punch drunk, as they say in the ring.

"The money to pay the ten boys who will win the $15,500 has been posted and will be paid them on June 1, just before the start of the 24-hour team race at Madison Sq. Garden. If there are any of the crowd that want to turn Bolshevik now they can do so. Let them quit when they want to."

Seth Gobales, Denver pastry baker, led the bunion derbyists into the eighty-second control here yesterday, after covering the 83 miles from Middletown in 459:27.

Published reports that many of the 55 Derbyists were so dissatisfied with conditions that they were ready to "strike" brought denials from some of those accused of being ringleaders in the movement.

Among these was William Kerr, of Minneapolis, who holds sixth place; John Pederson, of Spokane Wash., 47th, and Eugene Germain, of Montreal, 46th.

Passaic has declared a half-holiday for everybody but police and firemen so that due honor can be paid Salo.

bassy, and Edward A. Montgomery of San Francisco.

The solemn religious ceremony will take place tomorrow noon, when the young couple will be united at a nuptial mass in the historic Church of St. Pierre de Chaillo by the Abbe Patrick Flynn, cure of the Madeleine. Abbe Flynn is well known in the United States by reason of his frequent visits during the war on different diplomatic and propaganda missions.

Ambassador Herrick, as well as the majority of the American colony, in which both bride and bridegroom are popular, will attend the church ceremony. Several dinners and teas have been given to the couple, the chief of them being a dinner by the bride's aunt, Miss Kate Fuller, at the Hotel Plaza Athenee for 60 covers.

The bride has been a resident of Paris for several seasons. Her marriage to the handsome young military attache is the culmination of a romance which began last November.

Lieut. Glasgow was a member of the West Point class of 1926, which was graduated from the military academy in 1918. Upon graduation, he was sent immediately to France where he became an assistant to the adjutant at Brest. From this port, he was transferred to the Army of Occupation in Germany.

The couple expect to have for America in the fall to make their home in El Paso, Texas. Lieut. Glasgow has been transferred there after almost six years of foreign service.

Jack Sanborn's 2nd Wife Sobs Out Family Woes

Once again the trials and tribulations of John E. (Handsome Jack) Sanborn's matrimonial ventures were detailed for public consumption today when, in Malden Court, his wife, Mrs. Eleanor G. Sanborn, told of "paying the freight" for Sanborn's domestic affairs.

The former husband of Eleanor Montgomery, who divorced him after a brief honeymoon which she claimed was financed by her relatives, was in court on a non-support charge brought by his second wife.

Alternately weeping and powdering her nose on the witness stand, Mrs. Sanborn told her story of financial delinquincy on the part of the Winchester society man.

Petite, arrayed in a tailored ensemble, close-fitting black hat and wearing a pale blue flower on a shoulder, Mrs. Sanborn presented an appearance of youth which her own testimony belied.

Asked her age, she replied she had been 28 so long she had forgotten how old she really was, but volunteered that she had an 18-year-old daughter by one of two previous marriages.

Mrs. Sanborn testified they were married in Miami on January 21, 1925, after a fast-moving courtship of 22 days. When they returned to Boston, where she made her home at the Hotel Buckminster, they were inform by counsel that their marriage was not legal in Massachusetts because the time limit under the divorce decree granted the first Mrs. Sanborn had not expired.

They went to Green, Me., to live until November, she said. While there Sanborn threatened to shoot her, but she said she wasn't afraid because the gun was her own; why this fact should have allayed her fears was not brought out.

She testified that Sanborn had once accidentally injured himself with a gun, but was not pressed for details on this point.

To make their wedding legal in this State, they were remarried at Hamilton, August 16 last, she said.

They moved to Brentwood ct., Medford, and she assumed full responsibility for the household, Mrs. Sanborn said, "paying all the freight," in her own terms.

In six months, she claimed, her husband gave her only $35. She admitted he gave her $2,100 on one occasion, but said that he was only repaying her for expenditures and that shortly afterward he borrowed $2500, which he still owed her.

SKIPPER HELD IN $22,880 THEFT

Penniless and just out of Atlanta federal prison after a sentence on liquor charges, Capt. Mark M. Gilbert, master mariner, today faced larceny charges in Suffolk court in connection with a $22,880 shipment of leather supposed to have been lost on his ship when she burned at sea on the way to Riga, Russia, seven years ago.

Authorities tracing the big shipment, property of the Ayer Tanning Co., charged the skipper with diverting the consignment to Swampscott before sailing. The lot was at first believed lost in the burned vessel.

He pleaded not guilty and was held in $2100 after Police Inspector George Augusta told Judge Fosdick the man was penniless and that "$2500 was as good as $25,000."

$5000 for Policeman

Springfield, May 25 (AP)—A verdict with damages of $5000 was returned by a jury today in the suit of Patrolman W. J. Hartley against John and Frank Parisi, James V. Campo and Emidio Meloni for an attack on the officer while he was attempting to arrest one of the group for drunkenness.

ORDAIN 29 TO PRIESTHOOD

Twenty-nine young students of St. John's Seminary, Brighton, were ordained to the priesthood of the Roman Catholic Church at impressive exercises in the Cathedral of the Holy Cross today.

Still convalescing from an attack of the grip, Cardinal O'Connell was not in attendance, and the ordination was conducted by Rt. Rev. John B. Peterson, auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese. Assisting the auxiliary bishop were Rev. Dr. Charles A. Finn, rector of the seminary, and Rev. Dr. Joseph C. Walsh, professor of canon law.

Rev. Dr. Francis L. Keenan was master of ceremonies, assisted by Rev. Harry O'Connor.

The class was one of the largest in recent years and nearly 4000 relatives and friends of the ordained were present. In the chapel, after the ordination, the throng was blessed by the new priests, who on Sunday will celebrate their first high mass in the churches of their home parishes.

The following were ordained:

Alfred C. Sheehan, Natick; Francis A. Barry, Brockton; Edward T. Dunne, Chelsea; William F. Faulkner, Roslindale; William J. Gorman, Roxbury; John J. Hart, Newtonville; Francis J. Horgan, Newton Center; Daniel E. Hurley, Charlestown; Peter J. McDonough, Roslindale; Francis O. McGuigan, Chelsea; James T. McKeon, South Boston; Felix E. Narbut, South Boston; Daniel F. Riordan, Brockton; Robert E. McAleer, Belmont.

Arthur J. Silva, Hyde Park; Edmund G. Barry, South Boston; William J. Carty, Jamaica Plain; Edmund W. Croke, Belmont; Charles F. Engewald, Jamaica Plain; James G. Glennon, Jamaica Plain; John J. Kirby, Jamaica Plain; Thomas M. Lane, North Cambridge; Clarence A. MacKeay, Winchester; Leo M. McCabe, Somerville; Harold F. McDermott, Cambridge; Norbert H. Melnis, Allston; Cornelius T. Sherlock, Brighton; Harold M. Wren, Arlington, and Ralph Vincent Harris, Newton Center.

Norris Fights Against Senate Filibuster

Senator King of Utah also spoke briefly.

At the same time, unwilling to take any chances of squeezing out the compromise $232,495,000 tax reduction bill, Senate leaders had calculated a cloture petition to restrict the Muscle Shoals debate when they should get the conference tax report.

TO SAVE TAX BILL.

While the latter goes first to the House for approval, it was up to the Senate to act prior to that on the demand that it recede from its amendment opening income tax returns to public inspection.

Smoot of Utah, in charge of the Senate bill, announced he felt bound to have the Senate vote on the publicity provision again before asking the House to consider the compromise. House conferees had absolutely refused to accept the publicity amendment.

The collapse of the Muscle Shoals filibuster came after McKellar frankly told his colleagues he could go no further when he was turned down on two points of order he had made against the bill, but he added that he was certain President Coolidge would veto it.

McKellar, Tydings of Maryland, Blease of South Carolina, and King of Utah, bore the brunt of the speech making which ran through the night and morning, but the proponents of the measure as it stands, led by Norris, of Nebraska, stood their ground firmly.

Never throughout the long hours was there the slightest sign of surrender or compromise on their part. McKellar started the fight yesterday when he declared he would fight to the bitter end against a provision in the bill for a dam in Cove Creek, Tennessee.

A feature of the battle through the night was the work of a freshman among the Senate elders, Tydings of Maryland, who held the floor unaided and without manuscript and little other documentary assistance for three hours and five minutes as a state's rights champion against government operation and expansion of the Muscle Shoals project.

Tydings was the only Senate member in evening clothes and he seemed almost as vigorous in voice and looked as fresh and immaculate behind his starched shirt front at the end of his verbal achievement as he did when he began.

Blease, of South Carolina, was another hero of the thin but talkative line of defense. He had two speeches to his credit in less than 12 hours.

The only incident of the early hours today was an attempt by Black to sweep McKellar from his feet on a point of order made in the absence of Senator Norris.

Brookhart of Iowa held down the Vice-President's chair.

Norris returned in the midst of the wrangle and it then developed a gentlemen's agreement existed between McKellar and himself and the incident ended with the Tennessee Senator resuming his speech.

'CLOSED HOTEL TAXI STANDS DEFENDED

"The Independent Taxi Owners Association has more tangling privileges than all other leading companies combined and if you'll come to my office I'll prove it," said Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson, testifying today before the special City Council committee investigating the taxi stand question.

Asked why he continued to grant permits for taxi stands in front of the Adams House, Young's Hotel and Boston Tavern despite the fact that these hostelries have closed their doors, the commissioner said public convenience demanded it.

Wilson told the committee he believed the Supreme Court in a recent decision, in "Commonwealth vs. Rice," confirmed the extensive power allowing a police commissioner to grant permits for taxi stands.

It is estimated Boston hotels receive $1,000,000 a year from taxi companies for stands. The City Council committee is investigating with a view to diverting some of that huge revenue to the public treasury, claiming that such contracts or arrangements are in effect sales of public streets and that the money should be used for highway upkeep.

MANY PRIESTS ATTEND FUNERAL OF MRS. TAGUE

A score of priests and many State and city officials attended the funeral today of Mrs. Mary A. Tague, mother of former Congressman Peter F. Tague and of District Fire Chief Phillip A. Tague of the fire department, in St. Francis de Sales Church, Charlestown. Six nephews of Mrs. Tague were bearers, Frank, Francis J., Phillip G., Eneas Phillip A. Tague, U. S. M. N., Bernard F. and Albert F. Tague. Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

SHERMANS BOTH LOSE IN COUNTER SUITS

The Shermans of Weymouth, who battled for 40 minutes in their back yard and then marched inland from the sea to Norfolk Probate Court, may have neither his divorce nor her separate support, Judge McCook ruled today. Norman Sherman, seeking divorce, had charged cruel and abusive treatment. The wife, Mrs. Nellie D. Sherman, made the same charge in seeking separate support. Judge McCook made no comment in handing down the negative decision.

Norris Graft Pay Man Confesses All

As a result it is expected that for the first time well-known persons will begin to make their appearance at the district attorney's office for questioning, with the result that numerous indictments may be returned by the grand jury.

Doyle today conferred for more than an hour with an attorney who for years has handled court cases of an uplift society. The attorney left the courthouse, only to return a short time later with a quantity of the society's records. A short time afterward Special Officer Martin Conroy of the district attorney's office and Inspector Michael Morrissey hurried away on mysterious missions.

After an interval Conroy returned with two well-known underworld characters and a third person whose identity could not be established. They entered the district attorney's office and five minutes later Inspector Morrissey arrived with a man known as a stool pigeon.

The unidentified man, who was taken to the courthouse by Officer Conroy, was questioned first. While he was being grilled the underworld characters made frequent trips to a telephone in the corridor, with the result that an attorney who has represented them in the past, appeared and conferred with one of the men.

The two men in question have been around the courts for 15 years, one operating from the Back Bay and the other from the South End. It is said that within five minutes after certain disreputable houses were raided they would appear in police stations prepared to put up bail.

Dist. Atty. Foley has assigned two of his staff to go over lower court records with a member of the probation department, with the result that many interesting facts are said to have been revealed.

RECORDS SEARCHED

In the meantime Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle has gone over the police records dealing with these same cases, and is said to have selected three for a thorough investigation.

It was understood the attorney for the uplift society would describe disposition of cases as he knew them, and explain the reasons why certain recommendations were made.

In many instances the records show that fines were recommended in the lower court, and the authorities wish to know if the society did not recommend them, who did, and why the society agreed to such disposition.

13 BABIES HER LIMIT, HIS IS 50

Here are the stork's ex-host and ex-hostess—get the "ex," for they've tabooed the long-legged bird. They are Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cromwell of Bridgeport, Ct. He set 50 as the number of children they should have. She went on a strike when 13 had arrived and she had him arrested. Now she has forgiven him and taken him back.

FATHER AGREES TO LET 13 BE ENOUGH

Bridgeport, Ct. May 25 (INS)—With tears streaming from his eyes, Edward Cromwell, 40, promised today that he would not endanger the life of his wife by compelling her to bear more children.

He was released from jail yesterday where he was held on complaint of his wife, Edith, who wanted authorities to compel him to stop making her bring children into the world. She has had 13, all but five of whom died.

"I love children and I want plenty of them," he said. "But everybody seems to think that my wife is not able to bear any more. I'm going to take their advice and just work to support my family from now on."

"We don't have enough food to keep us going," said Mrs. Cromwell, "but if Ed believes himself the way he says he will I think we will get along all right. If he sticks to it I'll be happy with him. Our only worry now is that he might have lost his job on account of my having him arrested.

"When I look back at myself as a young girl 18 years old and look at myself now, I can't believe my eyes. I was just a happy girl and a lot of people said I was good-looking and I was bright and smart and full of pep.

"I hate to say it, but it's the truth: Marriage has brought me ill-health and poverty. Bearing 13 children has just about ruined me.

"There are millions of cases like mine. And there are millions of pretty, bright, well-dressed young girls who will marry inconsiderate men. A short time afterward they will no longer have pretty clothes. They ought to think this over, especially if they are planning to marry poor men."

Colmar, France, May 25 (AP)—Two recently elected deputies Dr. Eugene Ricklin and M. Rosse, today stood convicted of having plotted against the State as participants in autonomist movements aimed at making Alsace and Lorraine into a separate and independent republic.

Tumult greeted the conviction of the deputies and two other autonomist leaders, Schall and Fassshauer. Each was sentenced to one year's imprisonment and five years' banishment.

Not every dog is so fortunate as "Peggy," claimed by two owners, but given back to Miss Anna Sansome of Atherton st., Quincy Center. The dog strayed from home and was rescued from the dog officer by John Skaff of Quincy, who took Peggy home for his little daughter. Miss Sansome sighted the pup and won her battle for ownership.

Need for Safety Seen in Wet Weather

Frank A. Goodwin is now an editor. He has been appointed highway safety editor of the Boston Evening American and is believed to be the only highway safety editor in the United States. He carries his credentials with him.—From May 19th issue of Boston Review.

By Frank A. Goodwin

Highway Safety Editor Boston Evening American and Former Registrar of Motor Vehicles for Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

There will be far more accidents recorded this week than in the two preceding weeks.

WHY?

Because the weather this week has been much more favorable for accidents, due to rain and wet streets.

It is to be hoped that the SAFETY LESSON of today will receive the careful consideration of all pedestrians, but more particularly of all operators.

When the streets are wet and slippery it is far more difficult to control the action of an automobile. Brakes that will stop on a dry

THUGS FIRE ON DORCHESTER OFFICER

Patrolman Walter Waite of station 11 was fired upon by three thugs early today when he attempted to question them as they alighted from an automobile in front of the George Steck piano factory in Hilltop st., Neponset.

All three of the shots went wild and the thugs, described as young men wearing caps, jumped into the machine and sped away.

Patrolman Waite was detailed to guard the factory last night after Thomas Tyrell, the night watchman had reported that he had surprised several thugs at work battering open the office safe.

Several hours after Waite was assigned to guard the office an automobile drove up to the factory and three young men got out. Waite opened the door and was making forward to question the trio when they opened fire.

Inspector Harry Leiee from headquarters and Special Officers Brabzon and Monahan found that the crackmen had attempted to rifle a small safe, but had been frightened away after opening the outer door. They had also broken off the combination of a strongbox in the safe, which contained $48.32. This sum was found intact and was placed in charge of Miss Mildred O'Connell.

According to Inspector Leiee the thieves apparently wore gloves, as no fingerprints were visible. Police obtained a good description of two men seen near the factory Monday and Tuesday.

CLARA KNAPP'S STORY HIT

Albany N. Y., May 25—Mrs. Florence E. S. Knapp, first woman ever elected to political office in New York State, took the stand today to act as the chief defense witness in her second trial within a month for the larceny of a 1925 state census pay check.

Mrs. Knapp testified she had no knowledge before her election that one of the duties of the office would be its decennial state enumeration in June, 1925.

She was inexperienced in political work, she said, and consulted various persons as to her powers and duties. Appointments were made through regular political channels, she said.

She made a direct denial of yesterday's testimony of her stepdaughter, Clara Blanche Knapp, payee of the $2475.84 census check, which is the basis of the present indictment.

She said she talked with her stepdaughter about doing census work in April, 1925, when Miss Knapp visited Mrs. Knapp at Albany. Miss Knapp denied there was any census talk then, but the witness said she asked her stepdaughter to keep her vacation open so as to be available "for any work I might assign to her to aid in this gigantic task."

FULLER ASKS LEGISLATURE FOR PUBLIC RUM EXPOSE HEARING

til it has reached the present astounding proportions.

"We believe the time has come for revealing without fear or favor the whole notoriously corrupt condition which appears to obtain in the Commonwealth and especially in this city."

After its reading in the House, the message with its request was referred by Speaker John C. Hull to the Committee on Rules, with instructions to that body to act concurrently with the Senate Rules Committee.

The Senate was not in session today and will hear the message Monday at 2 p. m.

Before the House convened the Rules Committee met in a public hearing to consider liquor charges, if any, against members of the House only.

This hearing lasted only five minutes, for nobody appeared with evidence or charges of any sort, although about 40 spectators were present.

The message of the Governor to the Legislature was as follows:

To the Honorable Senate and House of Representatives:

On May 3, 1928, complaint was made by a letter, directed to me, of certain irregularities in the State House by a State House employe. I referred the complaint to the chairman of the commission on administration and finance for investigation and report. While this investigation is still going on, the pastors of four churches have sent a letter making very vague and general but much broader charges.

At the same time the State superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League publicly charges that members of the Legislature have taken part in "drunken parties" held in the State House itself. I transmit herewith the letter of the pastors and a newspaper report of the superintendent's charges.

The charges as they now appear, therefore, directly involve the Legislature, or certain present or former members of it, as well as State House employes. The Legislature seems to be the proper body to investigate the accusations. I recommend that a committee be appointed by the president of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives to investigate thoroughly these complaints and charges and that the sessions of the committee be open to the public.

ALVAN T. FULLER.

SOLONS FAIL TO HEAR CHARGES

HOUSE MEMBERS AWAIT "WILD PARTY" PROOF

When the House committee met today to hear witnesses in the State House "rum party" probe, no witnesses appeared. The "star witness," William M. Forgrave, head of the Anti-Saloon League here, has announced that he will save his own story for a later date. The House later heard Governor Fuller's ap peal for a full investigation of the case. The committee adjourned after a five-minute "hearing."

LETTER FROM PASTORS.

"To His Excellency Governor Fuller:

"Dear Governor—All good citizens of Massachusetts are burning with righteous indignation that law violation has been permitted to go on unchecked until it has reached the present astounding proportions.

"The conditions which now obtain are not by any means new and they have been well known to not a few of those whose business it is to protect honest citizens and insure law enforcement, but who have instead protected grafters and criminals. If evidence which seems to us abundantly satisfactory is true,

"We are greatly disturbed to discover that an investigation into conditions is being entrusted to some of the very persons who should themselves be investigated. We can see no prospect for improvement under such an investigation.

"We believe the time has come for revealing without fear or favor the whole notoriously corrupt condition which appears to obtain in this Commonwealth and especially in this city. We urge and insist that a group of eminent and honorable citizens not officially connected be selected and empowered to go to the bottom of the entire situation.

DEMAND REAL ACTION.

"We are not content to sit idly by while men for two years under indictment are still retained in the police force. We are unwilling to tie supinely on our back and witness a mere fractional or farcical inquiry. We want the good name of our city and state restored. We want the complete elimination of men who have been betraying trust reposed in them.

"We have always felt confidence in the integrity and sincerity of your purposes and activities and confidently expect your zealous engagement to accomplish the clean-up which the citizens of Massachusetts insist upon.

"We assure you of our hearty support and co-operation in your efforts to reveal and punish dishonesty and law desecration in general. To that end will you kindly grant us a conference at your earliest convenience?

"Yours for good citizenship and loyalty to the Commonwealth:

"Park Street Church, A. Z. Conrad.

"First Presbyterian Church, Robert Watson.

"West Somerville Baptist Church, Frank M. Swatfield.

"Tremont Street M. E. Church, Lynn J. Radcliffe."

Also appended to the Governor's message was a newspaper clipping with the following passage marked:

"Then William M. Forgrave, state superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League, stepped in with allegations that drunken parties were staged by legislators during prohibition festivities. Forgrave also said that, in his opinion, the scope of the investigation now being conducted by Commissioner Howard would be of no practical value.

"According to an affidavit in his possession, young women of the flapper type were present at a party of legislators in Room 148 of the State House immediately after a prohibition of the Legislature on April 28, last year."

NO WITNESSES APPEAR

When the rules committee hearing preceding the convening of the House was called to order Speaker Hull, who is ex-officio chairman of the committee, referred to "statements in the newspapers with startling headlines to the effect that wild parties had been going on at the State House, attended by present or past legislators."

He pointed out that the committee as it met today had authority only to investigate members of the House of Representatives.

"It is time for persons making these loose charges to prove or retract them," he added. "Persons having any information were invited to attend. Mr. Forgrave was invited to attend, but in a letter to me he said he had not made any allegations against the Legislature of 1927 or referred to any misconduct by any legislator.

"This committee will be glad to receive information from anyone. Is there anybody present with any information to offer?"

There was dead silence and Speaker Hull promptly adjourned the hearing.

Supt. Forgrave, the local Anti-Saloon League chief, later issued the following statement:

"It was, rumored at the State House this morning, following the hearing held by the rules committee of the House of Representatives, that I had failed to back up my allegations by not appearing at this hearing.

"I am not interested in hearings that do not have the authority to make a probe of the general liquor condition in the State House as requested by me and which has now received the indorsement of His Excellency, Governor Alvan T. Fuller.

NEED HOUSE CLEANING?

"Why waste time? Let's get down to busines. When an authentic investigation is conducted I will be there without a summons to aid the investigation. I have nothing to hide but much to be given to the public at the proper time and in the proper place, but not until then."

Told that there was rumors that the league was engaged on a "publicity stunt" in connection with a drive for funds, Supt. Forgrave said: "That's a lot of rot. There is no drive for funds going on. I defy anybody to show that a drive is on.

"There are more funds flowing into the Anti-Saloon League now than ever before. It's a continuous flow, mostly monthly contributions which have been going on for years. Contributions are greater now than when there were saloons.

"As for my non-appearance today at the rules committee hearing, let me repeat that what is needed at the State House is a thorough housecleaning and that to be done by a committee with power to summons witnesses and place them under oath and guarantee them full protection if they are State employes.

"The ground that the Howard commission attempted to cover should be covered again in public. The rules committee was only investigating legislators. The investigation must not be limited to legislators, but must include everybody connected with State affairs and the State House.

"When such a committee meets, I will be there to present evidence and to give leads toward more evidence. There's no doubt liquor were goings-on at the State House."

The commission on administration and finance, conducting a private investigation of charges of misuse of seized liquors in custody of the State police, finished its inquiry today.

Witnesses today included Lieut. Joseph O'Connor, custodian of the liquor; Maj. Sidney Cliffe, supervisor of Sunday entertainment in the department of public safety; Peter Phenney, chief engineer of the boiler room; and a State House guard.

In all, about 100 witnesses have been heard.

BREMEN FLIERS END TOUR AND RETURN TO N. Y.

New York, May 25 (AP)—The crew of the transatlantic airplane Bremen came back here today to obtain a needed rest after their triumphal tour before returning by steamship to Europe on June 9. The three, Baron von Huenefeld, Maj. James Fitzmaurice and Capt. Hermann Koehl, had been feted in a dozen cities of the United States and Canada, while always there pressed upon them the thousands anxious to see and hear the men who braved the westward crossing of the sea.

BEACON HILL BOY HURT WHEN AUTO LEAPS CURB

Crossing the curb, an automobile knocked down and seriously injured four-year-old John Brown, son of Mr. and Mrs. Waldo Brown of Lime st., West End, today, at Brimmer and Beacon sts. The child was walking beside his nurse, Miss Ruth Drury, who was unable to snatch him out of danger in time. At Massachusetts General Hospital he was reported to have a possible fracture of the skull, together with leg and arm injuries.

The auto was driven by Charles F. Meyers of Aspinwall rd., Dorchester, according to the police, and was turning into Brimmer st. from Beacon.

SAUGUS TIDE POWER CASE GOES TO JURY

A jury in federal court today received the case of John A. Knowlton, treasurer of the Universal Tide Power Company of East Saugus, and Miss Mary E. Cantwell, who have been on trial on mail fraud indictments. The Government charges Knowlton received $1,000,000 from stock sales fraudulently promoted and that Miss Cantwell aided and abetted him.

As Judge Lowell delivered the case to the jury, investigators of the federal income tax bureau were in court going over the company records in a search for evidence of the couple having received larger incomes than those which they reported.

READING REPORT MAY BE FILED ON THURSDAY

A preliminary form of the Reading case report will be ready by Thursday, Chairman George F. James of the legislative committee investigating the attorney-general's conduct in office, announced today.

If there are not too many changes, he added, the report will be filed with the clerk of the House of Representatives on the same day. Counsel for the committee met with it today and announced another meeting Thursday.

JUDGE ASKED TO DISMISS CASE

Because somebody in the office of Dist. Atty. Robert T. Bushnell was declared to have telephoned the Arlington police saying he was interested in the case and "would like to have it dismissed," Judge Arthur P. Stone placed a defendant on trial today in East Cambridge court.

Until told of the reported telephone message, Judge Stone had intended, he said, to file the case on payment of $10 restitution and $10 costs by the defendant, Floyd J. Rand, 37, charged with larceny of $10 from Mrs. Nora M. Sullivan of Winthrop st., Arlington.

Dist. Atty. Bushnell said he had had no conversation with Police Chief Urquhart of Arlington about this case, but said he had received that Asst. Dist. Atty. Frank D. Kingsley had talked with the chief. What the conversation was he did not know.

According to Mrs. Sullivan's testimony she gave Rand $30 on account on a house he showed her in Arlington.

Afterward, when she discovered the house never had been listed for rent or for sale and demanded her $10 returned, Rand refused to give up the money, she charged.

After Judge Stone had announced his intention to place the case on file, Sergt. Charles E. Carroll of the Arlington police approached the bench and said Police Chief Thomas O. Urquhart had requested him to disclose the call from Bushnell's office.

"Then, for that reason, this case will go to trial," said Judge Stone. "That is all the more reason the case should get publicity."

In his own defense, Rand testified he told Mrs. Sullivan the house was waiting for her in his real estate office whenever she wished to call.

Judge Stone, however, imposed sentence of 10 days in the House of Correction, which Rand appealed.

The judge then instructed Probation Officer William F. Donovan to take Mrs. Sullivan to Small Claims Court, where she could start civil suit and, turning to Rand, Judge Stone remarked:

"And I trust, in addition to this, you will get your 10 days."

Jersey Man Ends His Life With Gun Made From Iron Pipe

Jersey City, May 25—Stephen Edwards, 52, committed suicide in his home here by using a piece of iron pipe for a gun.

He placed a bullet in one end of a half-inch pipe about five inches long, held the other end of the pipe against his heart and hit the cap of the bullet with a hammer, exploding it.

BREMEN RESCUE PLANES IN HUB

Hopping from Portland, Me., to the Boston airport in little more than an hour, the two army airplanes, rescue ships returning from Greenly Island stopped here today before refueling for the trip to Washington.

Maj. Gen. James E. Fechet, chief of the Army Air service, in the plane flown by Lieut. E. H. Quesada and Captain Ira C. Eaker, pilot of the supply plane, were greeted by Maj. Gen. Preston Brown, commanding general of the first corps area. The first concern of Gen. Fechet was for the condition of Pilot Fauchild who rescued here 14.

The three and the 500 mile trip from St. Clement's to Greenly Island and return nearly proved disastrous when the gas supply ran low. Favorable weather conditions on the return trip saved them, they said.

SING THEIR WAY INTO JAIL ON A LAUNDRY TRUCK

All dressed up in a flossy Chinese laundry truck, two youths and three ladies were arrested early today while touring Newton streets on a charge of voluntarily serenading sleepy residents with a full line of wet wash and flat work harmony.

The five were given the aria in Newton court today and four were headed for the workhouse while the last heard of, because they could not raise the $20 fines imposed by Judge Baron And they had pleaded guilty.

Oddly enough, one of the laundry wagon girls was a laundress, May McKay, 18, of Upton st., Boston, soprano. The other four were Edward B. Johnson, 18, of Livermore way, Matteapan, driver of the truck and first bass; Arthur A. Dorn, 18, describing himself as a dancer, Fox st., Dorchester, second base; Grace Ford, 18, of East Canton st., Boston, shortstop, and Eunice Owens, 18, of Moore st., East Boston.

According to the laundry score recited in court by Officers Feeley, Walker and Marshall of the Newton police, they listened to the roughdry automotive musicale for 15 minutes before collaring the singers.

The policemen were sent out after a dozen complaints had been received from residents in the vicinity of Center, Washington and Tremont sts. that the Chinese laundry truck was touring around and around and doing no good at all either to music or to sleep.

G. O. P. WOMEN HAVE ON HOT ELECTION

Members from all parts of the State waited in line for hours today to cast ballots at the annual election of officers of the Woman's Republican Club.

With the clubhouse crowded, a line of women extended for a block down Beacon st. The line formed long before the president, Mrs. Franklin P. Hobbs read her annual report.

The contest was the most fiercely contested in years. It centered on the choice of president between Mrs. Franklin P. Hobbs, pledged to continue the policy upon which the club was founded, and Mrs. Frederick P. Bagley, pledged to inaugurate a more aggressive program.

Although feeling ran high the members obeyed the placards prominently displayed throughout the clubhouse forbidding discussion of candidates and five special police on duty found their task of keeping the crowd in order only a formality.

Balloting began at 9 a. m. and will not be finished until 6 p. m.

Mrs. Hobbs in her annual message declared, "We must rise above our own preferences and abide by the decision of the majority and stand by our party leaders."

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $2700 after expenses for the year were paid.

AUTOISTS AND PEDESTRIANS MUST BE CAREFUL

surface within a certain number of feet WILL NOT STOP ON WET SURFACE IN LESS THAN TWICE THE NUMBER OF FEET.

In other words, if it is safe to be operating a car in a certain locality at twenty miles an hour on a dry surface, the same degree of safety cannot be maintained at a speed greater than ten miles an hour when the street is wet and yet thousands of motorists make no allowance for this apparent fact.

Not only that, but many times visibility is greatly reduced by wet, blurred windshields. At night, everyone knows that oncoming lights impair the vision much more if windshields are wet and yet thoughtless and reckless motorists rush on, taking a chance that no one will be walking on the street.

TWICE AS MUCH.

Now let us look at the other side of the case. In the same proportion that motorists are reckless and under such adverse driving conditions, PEDESTRIANS ARE CARELESS IF THEY DO NOT EXERCISE TWICE AS MUCH CARE WHILE WALKING IN OR CROSSING STREETS.

Pedestrians should know and children should have it drilled into them, that the operator of a motor vehicle has far less control over his machine on wet streets and THEREFORE A GREATER MARGIN OF SAFETY SHOULD BE ADOPTED.

While the great burden is on the operator to cut down his speed, SELF-PRESERVATION should make every pedestrian, old enough to have sense to regulate his actions in accordance with the more dangerous highway conditions.

Mrs. Marion Daly of 7 Upton st, Boston, sent a letter that carries two thoughts worth commenting on. It reads:

Editor Mothers' Safety Don'ts—I am the mother of one little girl, 12 years of age. She is very careful in crossing streets. When going to and from school she always sees that some smaller child is safely across the street before she goes on her way.

Every day I see some boy or girl step out into the street, right into the path of an automobile. I know that your campaign will be of great benefit to many mothers who have been thoughtless in regard to their children playing in the streets. Good luck to your campaign.

In that letter we have the story of a child that looks out not only for her own safety but also for the safety of smaller children, less able to care for themselves.

That practice should be universal. Mothers should tell their children to give assistance to other little ones.

HELPFUL TO OTHERS

Besides teaching children to do a Big Brother act that may save a life, it will have the effect of forming the habit of being helpful to others which, in the final analysis, is one of the finest things in life.

The other thought in Mrs. Daly's letter that may help is her expressed opinion that many mothers are neglectful of their children because they do not exercise proper control over them by stopping them from playing in dangerous streets.

$150.00 Reward for Best "Don'ts" on Safety

The Boston Evening American is offering 28 cash prizes for the most effective sets of ten "Mothers' Safety Don'ts" to guard children from the auto peril.

The first prize will be $50, second $15, third $10, and there will be 75 $1 prizes.

Awards will be made on common sense, practical views, rather than for literary effort.

The judges are Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, wife of the governor; Capt. George A. Parker, registrar of motor vehicles; Fuller Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson and Assistant Superintendent Augustine L. Rafter of the Boston public schools.

Kindly write your "Don'ts" on a separate sheet, using one side of the paper. In your letter state number of children and ages. Write legibly and include name and address. Direct letters to Editor Mothers' Safety Don'ts, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

Write early. Remember the contest is already under way. We want to hear from all the mothers.

EARTH FROM FRANCE FOR GRAVES OF VETS IN MAINE

Winthrop, Me., May 25—To this little village in the hills of Maine will come the honor of witnessing the first ceremony of its kind, when a French officer will place in a local cemetery a casket of earth brought from the graves of American soldiers in Belleau Wood, France. The earth will be placed under an appropriate marker in Glendale Cemetery here by Brig.-Gen. Georges A. L. Dumont, military attache of the French embassy in Washington, on Sunday afternoon. The soil brought back by Francis H. Bate and Frank L. Tuttle of Winthrop Post No. 40, American Legion, after their pilgrimage to France last year, when they scattered earth from the graves of comrades here. Governor Ralph O. Brewster and other dignitaries will be present at the ceremony.

Heads Newbury St. Body

H. H. Halladay was elected president of the Newbury st. Association. Charles A. Hoyle was named vice-president; Joseph H. Leddy was named secretary, and William Edwin Clark was made treasurer.

LEGISLATOR PRAISES PLAN TO INSURE THOUSANDS

State Senator George G. Moyse of Waltham has four insurance policies on himself and he is seriously thinking of taking on another. The fifth member of the popular Fifth Middlesex District Senator's family of protection is going to be a Boston Evening American $10,000 accident insurance policy for $1 a year.

Senator Moyse is strong for the Boston Evening American's great plan of putting insurance within the reach of every man and woman in Massachusetts and New England. But he wants it distinctly understood that although he possesses four policies now and is likely to take on a fifth, that he is in no way interested in the insurance business. Senator Moyse is merely practicing what he preaches.

"Everybody should be insured these days," declared Senator Moyse when the Boston Evening American's insurance at cost for every one and everybody in New England was explained to him.

"The United States loses the services of thousands of its citizens through accident every year. The number is increasing 700% suffering for the victims who do escape death and their dependents.

"INSURANCE IS SOMETHING THAT NO PRUDENT MAN OUGHT TO BE WITHOUT."

WOMAN SHOULD NEGLECT WHEN IT CAN BE OBTAINED SO CHEAPLY."

Business and civic leaders of Boston and Massachusetts are voicing their praise of the Boston Evening American's work in this direction. Many of them are taking policies although they are amply protected through others.

That the people of New England realize the bearing of insurance upon the daily accident situation is evident through hundreds of coupon applications that are being received in every mail at the office of the Boston Evening American at 5 Winthrop sq. The number is increasing every day.

Fill out the coupon printed elsewhere and see that it gets to the Boston Evening American office at 5 Winthrop sq. and the $10,000 accident insurance policy is yours.

HIT-RUN DRIVER GETS JAIL TERM; GIRL IS FINED

George Wallace of Winthrop st., Medford, in Woburn court today, was found guilty of going away without making known his identity after an accident and was sentenced to one month in the House of Correction.

He was also fined $50 for driving so as to endanger the lives and safety of others and appealed both sentences.

Miss Ellen T. O'Donnell, 20, of Dearborn st., Medford, who was driving the machine under Wallace's license when it struck Noble Gates of Woburn in Winchester sq., was fined $25 for driving so as to endanger the lives and safety of others. She was found not guilty of going away without making known her identity.

The young woman testified that she wanted to stop after hitting Gates, but that Wallace seized the wheel of the car and drove toward Medford.

WASHBURN DIES AFTER SHOCK IN LENOX

Lenox, May 25 (AP)—Charles G. Washburn, 74 years old, life-long resident of Worcester, classmate at Harvard with Theodore Roosevelt and his biographer, died early today at the home here of Bishop Thomas F. Davies of the Episcopal diocese of Western Massachusetts.

C. G. Washburn

Mr. Washburn was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage Wednesday while attending the annual diocesan conference.

His death brought to an end a long career as politician, author, lawyer and manufacturer. He was elected to fill a vacancy in Congress from the third Massachusetts district in 1906 and was re-elected to the 60th and 61st Congress. Previously he had served in the State House of Representatives and Senate.

He was a delegate to the Republican national conventions in 1904 and 1916 and at the former was a member of the committee which notified Roosevelt of his nomination for the presidency.

Mr. Washburn was graduated from the Worcester Polytechnic Institute in '75 and from Harvard in '80, and was later admitted to the bar. He established the wire goods manufacturing company which is now the Washburn Company and was interested in the Washburn & Moen Manufacturing Company, which is now the Worcester works of the American Steel & Wire Company.

AUSTRIA FEARS REVIVAL OF MUSSOLINI'S WRATH

Vienna, Austria, May 25 (AP)—The Austrian cabinet today feared that serious plotting around the Italian consulate at Innsbruck, in the Austrian Tyrol, would bring a recrudescence of official Italian wrath on the part of Premier Mussolini against Austria. The Italian flag flying from the consulate flagstaff in honor of Italy's declaration of war against Austria 12 years ago was torn down and Commissioner Biasrali, Italian consul general, was booted and menaced. Police and soldiers beat back the mob. Many women and children were hurt and men were clubbed. The flag was promptly restored to its staff and the civic authorities hastened to apologize. Steps were taken to bring those guilty to punishment. Eight alleged ring leaders were arrested.

TOBIN ASSOCIATES DANCE MONDAY NIGHT

The annual dancing party of the Maurice J. Tobin Associates of Boston will be held at the Music Box on Huntington ave., next Monday evening, May 28.

This affair is the second of the social events scheduled for the organization, and will be directed by a large committee headed by Gertrude B. Shelley.

Miss G. B. Shelley

The program carries a number of surprise features. Several acts of special dancers and solo artists are also included.

Music will be furnished by Hooley's Orchestra of Boston.

15,000 U. S. Student Guests

London, May 25 (INS)—Between 10,000 and 15,000 American students will visit England this summer as guests of the International Confederation of Students.

HOWARD FAR AHEAD IN TYPOGRAPHICAL VOTE

Indianapolis, May 25 (AP)—Unofficial returns from 121 cities and towns out of 160 in Tuesday's election of officers in the International Typographical Union trickled into the union headquarters here today. Only the result for president and secretary-treasurer was tabulated.

The official tabulation will begin June 7.

The 121 cities and towns include half of the union's membership, and give for president: Charles P. Howard, Chicago, incumbent, 29,343 votes, and James M. Lynch of Syracuse, N. Y., 5,510. For secretary-treasurer, Woodruff Randolph, Chicago, 18,195, and John W. Hays of Minneapolis, incumbent, 10,153.

Portuguese Flier Killed

Lisbon, Portugal, May 25 (AP)—A military plane flying near Lisbon crashed into a windmill today. The pilot, Capt. Aragon, was killed and his mechanic was seriously injured.

Don't Blame Young Set; It Isn't Their Fault

Tulsa, Okla., May 25 (AP)—Although youth of today is as fine as it ever was, it has become popular to hold it responsible for everything that goes wrong, the Rev. Hiram Foulkes, pastor Old Presbyterian Church, Newark, N. J., and vice-president of the International Society Christian Endeavor, declared in an address before the general assembly of the Presbyterian church.

"The youth of today is not responsible for the books he reads, the philosophy he studies; nor did he establish the society he is born in," Dr. Foulkes said. "He has not chosen his own teachers and parents, he has received these smacks in the face.

"It is high time we watch our own step, and then ask ourselves, what do we owe our children."

HIGGINS ASLEEP AS HIS AUTO CRASHED; FINED

As the aftermath of an incident in North Attleboro, when his car knocked over two poles and crashed through a fence, Freeman Higgins of Beacon st., brother of Lawrence Higgins, who was named in the Whitney divorce case, was fined $50 in Attleboro today. The wealthy Boston man was charged with operating a motor vehicle so as to endanger lives and safety. He paid the fine.

Higgins explained he had fallen asleep at the wheel and the machine had gone out of control, resulting in his abandoning it. He was arrested when he returned to the scene to claim the car.

SCHWAB RECOMMENDS END OF "CROSS-HAULING"

New York, May 25 (AP)—Elimination of cross hauling or unnecessary transportation would effect desired economies for the steel industry and obviate the necessity of cutting wages or increasing prices, President Charles M. Schwab told the American Iron and Steel Institute at its semi-annual meeting today.

He recommended that a committee of expert steel men study the problem and place before the public and the proper public authorities a conservative plan looking to that end. The industry's return of approximately 5 per cent upon its $600,000,000 investment is not only adequate, but the lowest in any of the principal manufacturing industries, Mr. Schwab declared. Reduction of costs and increase in prices were suggested as the "most obvious remedies," but he believed the industry had gone to the limit in reducing production costs.

134 REPRESENTATIVES PLEDGE AID TO HOOVER

Washington, May 25 (AP)—Herbert Hoover's candidacy for the Republican presidential nomination today had the support of 134 Republican members of the House, including 24 of the congressional delegation from Pennsylvania, whose 79 uninstructed delegates to Kansas City are expected to play a powerful hand in selecting a nominee at the June 12 convention.

The entire group of 134 representatives gathered at the Willard Hotel at a final pre-convention meeting and pledged their whol-hearted support to the Commerce Secretary.

"RADIO TRUST" CITED BY FEDERAL TRADE BOARD

Washington, May 25 (INS)—A complaint citation charging unfair competition and restraint of trade was issued against the Radio Corporation of America today by the Federal trade commission after a long investigation into the so-called "radio trust." The corporation has 30 days in which to file an answer.

The practice of the corporation in so writing its contracts that all radio set manufacturers are compelled to use RCA tubes was condemned by the commission as an unfair practice and trade restraint.

37 STUDENTS DANCE AND ARE SUSPENDED

East Orange, N. J., May 24 (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Carl Erickson, president of Upsala College, today announced the suspension of 37 students because the had violated a rule of the institution which prohibits dancing.

The students have been barred from classes for the rest of the term, will be barred from taking their examinations until fall, but will be allowed to attend commencement exercises, Dr. Erickson said.

WARN ATLANTIC LINERS OF MANY ICEBERGS

Halifax, N. S., May 25 (INS)—Transatlantic liners were warned today to keep a sharp lookout for numerous large icebergs reported drifting along the steamship lanes. Commander Hunter of the United States coast guard cutter Modoc, which put in here after a tour of ice-patrol duty along the Grand Banks, stated that large icebergs in the north Atlantic were more numerous this spring than they have been for several years.

MEDIATORS IN M.L.W. STRIKE IN SESSION

New Bedford, May 25 (AP)—The New Bedford citizens' strike mediation committee, headed by Atty. Charles Mitchell, held a three-hour meeting with the New Bedford Textile Council, in which the strikers set forth their position on the strike now in its sixth week. The committee meets today with representatives of the manufacturers.

Only two delegates from New Bedford are to attend the convention of the National Workers' party tonight in New York, and they go without voting power as representatives of the Textile Mills committee, the

TWO TRUSTEES QUIT IN WOMEN'S COLLEGE ROW

New London, May 25 (AP)—The turbulent affairs of the Connecticut College for Women took a new turn when two members of the board of trustees submitted their resignations because a report they had prepared charging Prof. John E. Wells, head of the English department, with "arbitrariness" was rejected by the board.

The trustees who sought to quit are Mrs. George Maynard Minor of Waterford and Mrs. John L. Buel of Litchfield. Their resignations were tabled. Disagreements between Wells and President Benjamin T. Marshall, ending with the resignation of the president, have already caused 15 members of the faculty to quit.

JAP CABINET APPROVES U. S. ANTI-WAR PROPOSAL

London, May 25 (INS)—The Japanese cabinet has approved a reply to the American proposals for an anti-war treaty stating that Japan is willing to accept the plan on condition it does not conflict with Japanese obligations under the League of Nations covenant, said an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Tokio this afternoon. At the same time the Japanese communication points out that Japan's "right to self protection" must not be involved.

ALABAMA PRESBYTERIAN TO BE VICE-MODERATOR

Tulsa, Okla., May 25 (AP)—The Rev. Joseph M. Brady of Birmingham, Ala., has been selected as vice-moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the U. S. A., by Dr. Hugh K. Walker of Los Angeles, newly elected moderator. Walker's formal announcement of the appointment was ready for presentation to the General Assembly here today along with designation of the standing committee. Dr. Robert E. Speer of New York, is the retiring moderator.

WELD-BURGESS WEDDING TODAY IS HUB SOCIETY HIGHLIGHT

Ceremonial in St. Paul's Church, Dedham, to Link Two Noted Families, Says Betty Alden

BOSTON SOCIETY IN ITS VERY HIGHEST MANIFESTATIONS will be on hand in St. Paul's in Dedham today, when Miss Elizabeth Burgess walks up the hallowed aisle and meets Francis Minot Weld before the altar. Son of Mrs. C. Minot Weld, and a particularly glittering member of the "Bachelors," Mr. Weld is, or rather was, one of the town's most eligible young men, and so considered by managing mammas with charming daughters to be advantageously placed in hymeneal bonds. His clubs are the Somerset, the Tennis and Racquet, Exchange and Myopia Hunt, and his family affiliations bring in some of Boston's most azure-tinted lines.

TODAY'S BRIDE IS A CHARMING GIRL, BEAUTIFULLY educated, greatly traveled, and blessed with a delightful voice trained by foreign masters, she will be a shining light in the young matron set. Like so many of the spring's brides she is unattended at the altar, making the important pilgrimage on the arm of her brother, William Farnsworth Burgess, and having about her no gathering of feminine contemporaries as so many brides do. After the churchly ceremonial is completed guests go on to the Dedham home of Mrs. Theodore Burgess, maternal parent of the bride, to offer congratulations and good wishes.

SATURDAYS AND NOT SUNDAYS SEEMINGLY ARE THE MORE propitious for the "Try-Out" Theater's series of musicales. So the directors announce henceforth Saturdays are to be the days for their musicales. Tomorrow Clark Atwater, tenor, will warble, and Miss Katharine Chapman Warren lift up her dulcet tones with excerpts from Edwin Arlington Robinson's "Tristram." Frank Ramseyer is to play Mr. Leonard's Sonata. Mr. Atwater is tenor soloist of the Harvard Glee Club, and Mr. Leonard belongs to Harvard's music department. Patrons feel they will be sufficiently entertained, whatever the day, in a highly cultured manner.

JUNE 2 MISS HELEN HOWE GIVES A PROGRAM OF MONOLOGUES, and the week after that the Eighteenth Century ensemble plays. The series winds up with Miss Una Bates in her first American song recital. To enable patrons to easily reach the Try-Out Theater, a most amusing map, done adroitly in the John Held manner, is published. Following its green and buff directions the way may be easily traced by even very dense persons, and surely none of that sort will be found in Try-Out audiences.

BLONDE AND ENTIRELY CHARMING, AND ALWAYS LE dernier cri as to raiment, does Mrs. W. Deering Howe flash radiantly across local social skies. One notes the social progression of the former Miss Polly Brooks from one resort to another, wherever the world of wealth and fashion plays in its leisure hours. Recently at Aqueduct Mrs. Howe came within the camera's vision the very epitome of spring smartness. The brim of a small hat ripples exactly as mode decrees, and a sports ensemble is the piquant mingling of severity and spirited color Milady wears this year.

WHEN CERTAIN OF BOSTON'S HIGH BOHEMIA MINGLE IN the sacrosanct Chilton Club with stage personages and the literary-social set, to sip the cup of 5 o'clock and meet Miss Eva La Gallienne socially, in all probability Mrs. Constantine Belash will be behind the tea urn. Mrs. Belash is a daughter of the John Bartols and became the wife of the interesting Russian expatriate some two years ago. Her tea-pouring duties devolve through her mother, Mrs. Bartol's sponsoring of the tea and Miss Le Gallienne's theatrical company and plays.

CARDS FOR THE TEA HAVE GONE OUT JOINTLY FROM MRS BARTOL and Mrs. Edward Holton James. They, a duo of the smart set vitally interested in everything pertaining to the higher culture, quite enthusiastically welcome to town the charming Miss Le Gallienne and her troupe of Civic Repertory players. Within the sacred precincts of the Chilton Club those honored with cards will find the pleasantest of company in which to sip their oolong and rub elbows with striking stage personages.

THE NAMES OF MRS. ALVAN TUFTS FULLER AND HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR shine prominently in the list of the musically-artistic sponsoring a recital this afternoon at the Hotel Copley-Plaza. Mrs. Thomas Bailey Aldrich, staunch promoter of art and artists, music and musicians, is neighbor on the list to Mr. and Mrs. H. Addington Bruce and to Professor Katherine Lee Bates, the Hon. Wellington Wells and Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird. Songs by Mrs. Crittenden and play reading by Mrs. McGarry will be interesting and diverting.

NOW THAT BRIDES ARE OCCUPYING THE VERY CENTER OF the social calcium, innovations for costumes and decorations are eagerly sought, especially by the fair young thing anxious to give nuptial celebration a touch somewhat different from the ordinary. At the Gurnsey Curran, Jr., nuptials in Manhattan the former Miss Florence Kip Cralke sat at the wedding breakfast beneath pale green spun sugar wedding bells and her spouse helped her cut a wedding cake of fairy castle design rayed by colored lights.

BOSTON'S INTEREST IN MRS CURRAN, JR., is particularly through Mrs. Walworth Pierce, formerly Mrs. Curran, and mater to the good-looking bridegroom. The wedding was brilliantly done and now follows the inevitable honeymoon journey to Europe, where bride and bridegroom see together many of the beauty spots visited in days of single blessedness. Gowns of brides and attendants are essentially of the spring, fluffy and ruffled in rare laces, daintily colored and modish rather pictorial as to inspiration, as May approaches June.

FINAL FILE COPY

Cleveland, Ohio

W. L. Ross, President — January 26, 1928.

Mr. George B. Chandler, Secretary, Ohio Chamber of Commerce, Columbus, Ohio.

Dear Mr. Chandler:

Your letter of the 24th concerning the Boulder Dam and action taken by the Ohio Chamber of Commerce:

My feeling is that the Ohio Chamber of Commerce is an Ohio institution and has much constructive work in the State. My feeling also is that where the Ohio Chamber of Commerce deals, to any extent, in national questions or questions involving conditions outside of Ohio, their views should be expressed, if at all, in a very general way.

The money provided by the Government, thru President Roosevelt's efforts, for the Roosevelt Dam, was loaned and is being paid back to the Government. The Water Users Association organized in the Salt River Valley, manufacture and sell electricity, and they sell water. I think if all irrigation projects and natural resources could be used in the same manner, the benefits would be general and their efforts would create much national wealth.

My personal views are very strong in dictating to me, that it is no part of our business, in Ohio, whether the Boulder Dam is constructed or not. It's a local matter for the States west of the Rocky Mountains to determine whether or not they desire to utilize the natural resources and advantages in providing for irrigation and providing for power. How they wish to finance the project and how the interest should be divided, as between States, is purely a local question.

The question as to the Government going into business of any kind, I think is a question that all citizens of Ohio and citizens of other States are interested in and have a perfect right to express themselves, and my confirmed opinion is, that if we, of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, wish to take any action by resolution or recommendation, setting forth the feeling on the part of the Ohio Chamber, that the Government, as such should avoid business enterprises of any kind, as to financing projects of this kind, where the individual taxes of society generally are affected, it does seem to me it might be proper to express that any financial aid provided by the Government should be on some sound basis, whereby the Government would receive some consideration for the money advanced and a return to the U. S. Treasury of such money, as in the case of the Roosevelt Dam.

I think we should be very slow to take up the troubles of our neighbors. It's an easy matter to tell the other fellows what they should do, and I am firmly convinced that our strength and our usefulness, as an organization, depends upon how well and how careful such matters are considered, and the care with which resolutions, that we may pass, are drawn. I would prefer to be associated with an organization of this kind, passing one constructive resolution and doing one good job through the year, than to pass a resolution every time someone thought of it, about things we have no interest in or with which we have no connection.

A resolution club, as such, organized on the basis of mass production, has no standing whatever with me.

Yours truly,

RE (Signed) W. L. ROSS

A PROTEST that proved vain is voiced by W. L. Ross, president of the Nickel Plate Railroad and director of the Ohio State Chamber of Commerce, in this letter to George B. Chandler, secretary of the Ohio Chamber, Mr. Ross objects to the Ohio State Chamber of Commerce taking a stand on Boulder Dam on the ground "that it is no part of our business in Ohio whether the Boulder Dam is constructed or not."

In spite of Mr. Ross' forceful protest a resolution condemning Boulder Dam was passed by the chamber, and the entire country was propagandized by means of a circular letter signed by Chandler.

The Ross protest reads in part:

"My feeling is that where the Ohio Chamber of Commerce deals to any extent in national questions or questions involving conditions outside of Ohio, their views should be expressed, if at all, in a very general way.

"The money provided by the Government, through President Roosevelt's efforts for the Roosevelt Dam, was loaned and is being paid back to the Government. The Water Users Association, organized in the Salt river valley, manufacture and sell electricity, and they sell water. I think if all irrigation projects and natural resources could be used in the same manner, the benefit would be general and their efforts would create much national wealth.

"My personal views are very strong in dictating to me that it is no part of our business, in Ohio, whether the Boulder Dam is constructed or not. It is a local matter for the states west of the Rocky mountains to determine whether or not they desire to utilize the natural resources and advantages in providing for irrigation and in providing for power How they wish to finance the project and how the interests should be divided is purely a local question.

"I think we should be very slow to take up the troubles of our neighbors. It is an easy matter to tell the other fellows what they should do, and I am firmly convinced that our strength and our usefulness as an organization depends on how well and how carefully such matters are considered and the care with which resolutions that we may pass are drawn.

"I would prefer to be associated with an organization of this kind, passing one constructive resolution and doing one good job through the year, than to pass a resolution every time someone thought of it about things we have no interest in or with which we have no connection.

"A resolution club, as such, organized on the basis of mass production, has no standing whatever with me.

"Yours truly,

"W. L. ROSS."

A few days later thousands of circular letters, accompanied by a pamphlet pretending to discredit the Colorado river project, were sent broadcast through the country. One of these, signed by Chandler, will be published in these columns tomorrow.

CLOSING MINES TO SAVE JOBS OF 80 P. C.

New York May 25 (AP)—The Consolidation Coal Company, in which John D. Rockefeller, Jr. is a major stockholder, has taken the first step toward a scheme of what it observers compared to the bituminous industry reproduction—by [illegible]

[illegible] in some [illegible] of the [illegible] coal [illegible] that [illegible] operations [illegible] part of West [illegible] basis [illegible] down.

[illegible] employment [illegible] 200 men, or 20 per cent of [illegible] and two thirds of [illegible] the mines that for the remaining 80 per cent the better conditions [illegible] said.

[illegible] it will be able to work full time because of this [illegible] part time on which they are scheduled before [illegible] said. The company expects to take care of all married men and their families by replacements if necessary. At this time of year it should not be hard for the single men, who are not laid down, to find employment."

The Consolidated Coal Company, a statement of policy said, sees no reason from the coal industry a present [illegible] in cutting prices, nor any condition on to follow stability in existing wages. It laid down the principle that "the primary object of both mine and labor and mine management must be the most regular work-time possible under a proper wage basis."

The chairman of the Consolidation's board pointed out that the step being taken by his company was advocated by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, two years ago.

Dab of Red Paint Lands Him in Theft Toils

Several small spots of red paint on the rim of a tire on his automobile landed Thomas Hartin, 40, Charles st., Lynn, in court today, where he was held in $1000 for the grand jury for the alleged larceny of the tire.

The tire, police say, was one of five stolen within a week from the car of Ernest Wilmes, parked daily in the Norton st. parking space of the genial Herb to. Last week three more tires disappeared from Wames' car. Wednesday morning disappeared. Each time the new tires were replaced with old. One of the stolen tires had red paint on its rim.

Learning Hartin had been changing a lot of tires recently, Patrolmen Bennett and Keller waited for him at his home until 3 a. m. Finally Hartin drove up, red paint was found on one tire and he was arrested. Police allege he drove Wahnes' car to his home, changed tires and drove it back again.

Marion Davies in "The Patsy"

Patsy Is Here Next Monday!

Patsy will give you the laugh of your life. Once she used to see big sister get all the gravy of life while she got only the scrapings. Even her wise old Pappy couldn't help her, though he would hold her hand, or her head! Then, all of a sudden, she got wise to herself. She began to make whoopee in a big way—and soon she had all men eating out of her hand.

$10,000 ACCIDENT INSURANCE POLICY AT ONLY $1

Nothing More to Pay!

New England's Largest Evening Newspaper Makes a Great Contribution to the Cause of Public Safety and Protection

NORTH AMERICAN ACCIDENT INSURANCE COMPANY

May 14, 1928

Mr. Malcolm S. Lund,
Boston American,
Boston, Mass.

My dear Mr. Lund:

This will acknowledge receipt of your contract with us for a special Travel, Automobile and Pedestrian Insurance Policy for your readers. In view of the large quantity of these policies, which you are issuing, we are making you a price of $1.00 per policy with the understanding that you are to sell these policies for no more than $1.00 per policy to your readers, and with the further understanding that all salesmen and persons handling the policy shall be duly licensed by the Insurance Department of your State.

The policy has been approved by the Insurance Commissioner of Massachusetts and the company has been doing business there for many years, and the policies must be issued in conformity to all the insurance laws and regulations.

Very truly yours,

Manager Newspaper Department

The above letter describes the agreement whereby the Boston Evening American undertakes to distribute to the people of New England $10,000 accident insurance policies at exactly the purchase price of $1.00. The American is to bear all additional expenses. Mayor Nichols, former Registrar Goodwin, Edward Dana, general manager of the El, and many other civic and business leaders heartily commend the Boston Evening American's campaign of safety and protection.

THE Boston Evening American has launched the most vigorous campaign to prevent accidents in the history of New England. This newspaper has devoted time, effort and money to save lives, to PROTECT the people of New England who are every day subject to injury or death by accident. Now we go still further and offer to every person between 15 and 70 years of age, a $10,000 accident insurance policy for ONE DOLLAR.

The Boston American, with the hearty endorsement of civic and business leaders, launches this campaign in the spirit of public service. We believe no man continually subjecting himself to accident in modern daily life has any right to leave his family unprotected.

There are no complications to this offer. You don't have to take a physical examination. You don't have to pay anything more than the $1.00 registration fee, every cent of which goes to the insurance company. In the event of injury or death, you or your beneficiaries don't have to concern yourselves with the question, "Whose fault was it?" The policies are underwritten by the North American Accident Insurance Company, one of the oldest and largest in the United States.

PROTECT YOURSELF

23 persons are accidentally injured every minute; 1310 every hour; 33,120 every day.

7000 passengers and employes are killed each year in railroad accidents.

Automobiles kill 26,800 persons each year.

Accidents always seem to happen to those least expecting them, yet scarcely 2% of those killed or injured through accident have made any arrangement at all for their dependents. The Boston Evening American is powerless to prevent the physical hardships that result from accidents, but it CAN AND DOES protect the family and the individual from want and privation that follow in the wake of accidents.

Send the coupon now! It is your solemn duty ☛

2 MILLION IN OIL BOND TAX

Washington, May 25 (AP)—A total of more than $2,000,000 in income taxes has been recovered as the result of the Senate investigation into the Liberty bond oil profits of the Continental Trading Co., Secretary Mellon today informed the Senate in reply to a resolution asking the information. Part of this amount, $606,017.19, was recovered from H. M. Blackmer, of Denver, James E. O'Neill, former president of the Prairie Oil and Gas Co. and the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co.

Included in the taxes received were $151,297 from Blackmer, $121,301 from O'Neil and $.45.73 in penalties and $47,186 in interest from the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Company. Other items collected totaled $1,535,906.

The taxes assessed were the regular corporation taxes on behalf of the Continental Trading Company, whose profits were divided among Harry F. Sinclair, Robert W. Stewart, O. Nee and Blackmer.

Penalties were added for non-payment. The individuals still have their personal income taxes to pay on the amounts they received, Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, said.

LITTLE SINS" By KATHARINE BRUSH

A Story of Gay Life and a Battle of Hearts

Gay Leonard, spoiled darling of fortune, is loved by Alan Pomeroy, a worthwhile athletic young man. She is fascinated, however, by Jerry Davis of questionable reputation. To get her away from him her family takes her on an eight months' trip. Meanwhile she thinks only of Jerry. She is jealous of Dolly Quinn, whom he has met in a cabaret where Dolly has taken a job as hostess to earn extra money for art lessons. While Gay is away Jerry falls in love with Dolly and tells her so, but she does not care for him in that way. Through Nick Standish, a newspaper man, she is selected to enter a beauty contest. Jerry protests in vain. Gay comes back and is a guest at a lively house party nearby. Mrs. Matthews, her hostess, admits that she would like to see Gay marry Alan. She confesses she loves Jerry. During the evening's festivities Alan tries to get her to go outdoors. She refuses. She learns that Dolly Quinn is in the beauty contest and makes up her mind that she must see it—so she and Alan remain as guests of the Matthews. Dolly, chaperoned by Mrs. Minafee, her boarding-house keeper, and Nick Standish, has an exciting time preparing for the beauty pageant. Gay, determined to find out how Jerry regards Dolly, makes a point of going to her table. Mrs. Minafee tells Gay that Jerry wants to marry Dolly. Gay, mad with jealousy, realizes she has lost Jerry and goes to the beach with Alan. He proposes and she accepts him. Dolly rides in the beauty pageant.

(NOW GO ON WITH STORY)

CHAPTER 23

"THE sea is so quiet," Gay said. "Isn't it?"

They were silent a moment, hearkening to the lap of languid waves upon the shore.

"It's recovered its equanimity," commented Alan, "after the jolt Jane and Windy handed it."

Gay smiled slightly. The midnight bride of Jane McClure and Windy Grant, hand in hand and wearing evening clothes, straight into the ocean and farther in, until it licked Jane's throat, had been a headline feature of the late house party.

"That was mad, wasn't it?" she mused.

"A trifle, yes."

They were speaking in voices instinctively hushed, appropriate to the stillness around them; their sentences were hardly more than sighs on the wind. Both looked toward the water, quiescent as a gray mirror in the grayer shadows. . . . Alan's cheek was very near Gay's temple. His free hand held one of hers, and latticed her fingers with his fingers. Once he lifted the hand and pressed his mouth to its palm. "I could eat it!" he said.

(Once Jerry Davis, saluting her in just such fashion, had crooned, "This little hand—like a pink petal holding the glistening dew of all my happiness—")

She took the hand from Alan gently and locked it with its mate around the chiffon peak of her knees.

"Cigarette, please, Alan."

He chuckled, burrowing obedient- ly in a side pocket. "The old cry!" There was a pause while a match flared in his cupped hands, and he bent his head. A snapshot of his illumined profile, strong, ruddy, with the eyelid lowered under the thick arrow and the cheek taut to pull the smoke, remained sharply in Gay's mind for seconds after it merged with the gloom again.

"I fully expect," he resumed, "that when you and I die, and are sizzling side by side in one of the Stygian skillets, you'll turn to me and say, 'Cigarette, please, Alan.'"

"Then do be buried with a carton in each hand."

For some time thereafter they smoked wordlessly, seeping themselves in the dim dreary peace of the night. A billion stars brooded over them, like a field of wild flowers interted. A new moon made a slim pale comma in the sky. Beneath them the sand was feather-soft, and faintly warm with the remembered kiss of sunshine. Gay sank her hand into it, sifted it idly through her fingers. "Sh-h-h-h!" whispered the dark sea. "Sh-h-h-h!" A ceaseless lullaby that soothed the senses, that drugged and dulled the pain of the mind. "Sh-h-h-h!"

"I feel better," she said presently.

His encircling arm tightened. "I'm so glad."

He smelled nicely of tobacco and cleanliness and the out of doors. He was very big indeed; good to lean against. She had a sudden cognizance of the pleasant strength of his arm, a sudden conviction that when he took it away, she would know agony again. His arm was a fortress built between her and a world gone utterly wrong; its curve was a haven in which she cowered and was safe for a little while.

"Don't take it away," she breathed. "I need it—awfully."

Her head drooped toward him, and nestled in the hollow below his

MULLOWNEY GIVES TIPS ON BUYING MEAT

Dr. P. H. Mullowney

Director of Hearst Health Laboratory

The average housewife who does the meat buying for her family need not be an expert to assure herself of a fair return for her money.

There are many sides to the question of meat purchasing which may be learned only after long training and experience, but there are a few general rules that will greatly aid the casual buyer.

Dr. Mullowney with a responsible butcher, whose product has undergone an efficient official inspection, and whose standing in the community is assured. By this action alone you have gone at least half-way in lessening your difficulties in selection.

Today I will try to indicate a few of the points that must be borne in mind when you enter a market to select meat for your dinner table.

Perhaps the most important consideration of all is to limit your trading with a responsible butcher, whose product has undergone an efficient official inspection, and whose standing in the community is assured. By this action alone you have gone at least half-way in lessening your difficulties in selection.

You will have some measure of justification in feeling that his own business interest and skill will see to it that a wholesome product will be offered for your approval and purchase.

EXAMINE ALL MEATS

Having done this, your next step will be to examine carefully the various selections of meat that are on sale.

BEEF: The first consideration is that the beef is sound and wholesome. That is it must be clean, free from bruises, taint or slimy appearance. The flesh should be a bright red in color, well-grained and mixed with a moderate amount of fat. The fat should be interspersed through the lean, because the absence of this fat is apt to indicate a lower grade of beef.

A good color and a good grain are usually found together. A

Dr. Mullowney Aids in Seizure of Big Bad Candy Stock

The campaign of Dr P. H. Mullowney, director of the Hearst Health Laboratory against the sale of stale and unwholesome candy, continues to bring results.

A complaint reached the local health authorities recently that an East Boston man had a large stock of this class of confection which was intended for resale in grab bags for children.

Prompt action was taken by inspectors of the health department and, as a result, 165 pounds of marshmallows were seized.

Cream of College Track Stars at Stadium Today

STANFORD FAVORED TO WIN I. C. 4A TITLE

ered to their capacity to warrant starting places in the finals.

MANY DARK HORSES

There are many athletes in the fists this afternoon who are entering this meet without the ballyhoo of headliners. They people like power is unknown and throw unknown horses in the main works of the favorites.

Practically every college has entered a full capacity team, and chances are that there will be many surprises before nightfall.

The program for this afternoon calls for trials in twenty of the fifteen events. There will be no trials in the mile and two-mile runs. These will be run off tomorrow. At the conclusion of the indoor meet men will be left for the finals in all events except the dashes and hurdles, which will be carried over to tomorrow.

The poor condition of the track today is bound to rob the large gathering of the thrill of seeing another world record go by the boards. Charley Borah on a fast track was expected to tie the mark in the century, while Bud Spencer was considered a likely new record holder in the quarter.

Field event records however seem more likely. Elmo Kreng of Nebraska in the two-day meeting is expected to raise the javelin toss three inches. He has already broken his mark in practice and should he duplicate this performance will bring a new world's mark.

By winning the events of the athletes to date Stanford stands in line with the best team in the country. Its nearest rival is the University of Southern California. The University of Pennsylvania is considered the likely winner of third place with the eastern college following in the rear.

Harvard expects to make a favorable showing by placing Lewis and Mason in the dashes, Post in the mile, Reid and Luttman in the longer distances and Shapiro and Moore in the field events.

Argonne A. A. Boxers Back in the Gym

With three days more of training, the principals in the Argonne A. A. dual-card mix-up off post-poned because of the first open air show of the season at Braves Field are back in the gymnasium, now that Promoter Eddie Mack has definitely decided that the launching of the outdoor season will not take place until next Monday night.

Larry Gaines, Canadian heavyweight champion, eager to make a reputation in this city called off a fight in Kansas City for Monday night in order to remain here for his go with Tom Kirby.

Arthur Flynn of Lawrence and Georgo Mandolas of Dorchester who will coast for the middleweight championship of New England returned to the gym yesterday and went through busy sessions.

SPANISH NET STAR ILL

Auteuil, France, May 23 (AP)—Poor health has forced Senorita d'Alvares of Spain to scratch from the French hard court tennis championships, it was announced today.

Her withdrawal from the tournament caused much disappointment to tennis fans who had expected the Spanish girl to be pitted against Beatrix Wilde in the finals of the women's singles.

Senorita d'Alvarez hopes to be able to meet the English champion tomorrow if she she was able to get out of the finals by Miss Wills last week.

With tennis weather prevailed at Auteuil today as a consequence Mlle. Lenglen and Miss Wills and Francis T. Hunter the only American entrants, in the singles, have no match scheduled until tomorrow.

LEWIS DEFEATS McLEOD

Stranger Lewis once more proved his greatness as a wrestler when he scored two falls in his bout with George McLeod at the Arena.

Lewis secured both the first fall in 6m. and 3s. while he scored with the second fall in 2m.

A large crowd witnessed the bout which was one of the most thrilling matches of the season.

On several occasions McLeod had Lewis in distress, but the latter was always able to get out of the difficulty.

In the semi-final, the sensational Gus Sonnenberg won from Jack Gunson in 16m. 2s. A flying tackle, toe holds, and wrist lock decided the match.

Charley Hansen came through with a win over Leone Labriola in 34m. 40s. A wrist lock was the winning hold.

Pat McGill conquered Doc Sarpolo in 16m 5s with an airplane spin.

Bull Komar upset Abe Kaplan in 17m. 5s. A flying mare gained the victory.

John Spellman and Stanley Stasiak went 15m to a draw.

Mrs. Baker Defeats Mrs. Gardiner in 20-Hole Match

MISS BREWER BEATS MISS BATCHELDER, 3-2

By BILL GRIMES

Mrs. Edward H. Baker, Jr., of Oakley, who is the defending champion, and Miss Martha Brewer of Weston came through with victories in the semi-final round of the Women's Golf Association of Boston championship by defeating Mrs. R. M. Gardiner and Miss Ruth Batchelder, respectively, at the Weston Golf Club.

The Baker-Gardiner match was a nip-and-tuck affair which went to the 20th hole before a decision was reached. Mrs. Baker was 1 up at the turn, but lost her advantage at the 11th hole, and after the match was again squared at the 14th, Mrs. Gardiner took the lead by getting a 4 on the 15th, and a 5 on the home hole by Mrs. Baker sent the match into extra holes.

Miss Brewer got the jump on Miss Batchelder by winning the first two holes and the familiar of last year was not able to make up these holes. Miss Brewer was 42 to the turn and had a two-hole advantage over Miss Batchelder and a win at the 12th put her 3 up. Miss Batchelder got a 3 on the long 14th for a win but Miss Brewer had a 4 on the 15th and was dome 3 and the match ended when they halved the 16th 2 up.

Mrs. Baker started off with a win on the opening hole but got into trouble going up the long 2nd, losing the hole to a 6. The champion won the 3rd and 4th hole and retained her two-hole lead until the 7th, when Mrs. Gardner ran down a put for a dance. Mrs. Baker was one up at the turn.

After they had halved the 10th Mrs. Gardiner squared the match with a fine putt on the green, running down a 25 footer for a 3. However, Mrs Baker went out in front again at the 12th which hole she won with a 4.

The eighteenth was halved in five and Mrs. Gardiner picked up on even terms when she won the long 14th with a 4 to 5. She then went out in front at the fifteenth, where she and another four. The seventeenth was a heart breaker for Mrs. Baker. Mrs. Gardiner pulled a tee shot to the left of the green and second went 30 feet past the cup, while Mrs Baker was home from the tee and only eight feet from the pin.

Mrs. Gardiner was still away after the mid-island her record, but she bunkered on her 6th of the seventh green by dropping an 8-foot putt for a three, and the best Mrs. Baker got was a half as she missed the eight putt.

Mrs. Baker squared the match at the eighteenth with five and the first extra hole was halved. Going to the twentieth hole Mrs. Gardiner put her fourth shot on the edge of the green and Mrs. Baker across the green. Mrs. Gardiner was still short with her fifth but then stepped up to the cup, Mrs. Baker had two putts for a win, the first being very short, but her second rim trickled into the cup and the match was over.

The summary:

Mrs. E. H. Baker, Sr., Oakley, defeated Mrs. R. M. Gardiner, Weston, up, 20 holes.

Miss Martha Brewer, Weston, defeated Miss Ruth Batchelder, Weston, 3 and 2.

TWO HARVARD CREWS TO RACE AT PHILLY

Two Harvard crews left last night for the American Henley races to be held at Philadelphia tomorrow. Harvard will be represented by its 150-pound varsity and third varsity crews.

The Harvard oarsmen will arrive in Philadelphia today and will be out on the schuylkill for two practice sessions.

Coach Steve Heard announced the following seating for his lightweight crew: James DeNormandie, bow, Henry W. Bragdon, 7; R. S. Bolster, 6; Capt. W. L. Gregg, 5; F. F. Farnsworth, 4; F. B. Lee, 3; J. A. Swords, 2; D. S. Staples, bow; L. L. Wadsworth, coxswain.

Freddie Sullivan, coach of Harvard class crews, has put together an eight composed of class crew men and varsity substitutes to represent the Crimson in the heavyweight race.

Elect Track Captain at B. C. Today

Boston College's track captain for next year will be elected at a meeting of the letter men at the Heights this afternoon. The honor will go to either Erwin "Rex" Beach or Frank Harkins.

Both boys have been on the Boston College track team for three years. Rex specializes in the field and weight events.

Beach scored 13 points against Holy Cross in the recent meet while Harkins took a second in the two-mile run after leading all the way until the final lap.

MR. BOSTON By Jack Conway

"At the All-Sports dinner in New York the other night the 1200 notables present proclaimed Col. Charles A. Lindbergh as the sport of sports, while they voted for Gene Tunney as the man who has done the most for athletics during the past year," said Mr. Boston today. "Babe" Ruth was a few votes behind Tunney.

"There was scant applause when it was announced that Tunney had finished first in the vote, and a Red Grange ovation came when it was made known he had finished second. Yet vote for Tunney was due chiefly to the personal popularity of Pat Gleason, the champion's manager, who had many friends in the boxing fraternity at the dinner.

"I do not believe there is an athlete who is as popular as Red. He has a freshness in both on a classes of sport fans.

"Yet, Lindbergh is without doubt the king of all sports. For individual courage and achievement he stands out above all the rest.

"Jack Dempsey, despite his frequent drawing powers, only received a scattering vote. Sport leaders, as well as the fans, seem to believe the old Tiger has had losers enough, and that he would have the spotlight position on the stage of events to the new crop of athletes.

"I first noticed this feeling at Chicago last September. I went to the Windy City, expecting that the town would be solidly behind Dempsey who has spent much of his time there. I found nothing people I met when they would like to see Gene. Tunney was the usual answer. When I would press to see for their reason, they would pay something like this 'Dempsey has had his day in the public eye. Let somebody else have a chance.' Tunney fought in the war and has been a clean living fellow. I'd like to see him win.'

"When two heavyweights were matched, Tunney got a greater hand than Dempsey. There wasn't any doubt in the case of Dempsey in favor of the champion, despite the long count and everything else.

"Among those persons closely connected with the ring, most Tunney is not popular. He doesn't care a lot for them, as he figures that most of them are cheelers and low brows. The sporting people are for Gene 100 per cent, while he also has many followers among the middle class which believes he has earned honor I won as champion.

"Speaking at the All-Sports dinner, Mayor James A. Walker of New York took quite a shot at those fight fans who rate a boxer.

"I haven't got any use for the fan in the first row or in the twentieth row, safely protected by his ringside seat, who hurls abuse at a boxer,' said the mayor. 'It often happens that due to illness, sickness at home, or some other greater trouble that a boxer is unable to do his best. Yet he is in there trying. I know men in business who will dog it when they have merely a headache.

"When I see a man safely entrenched in a ringside seat hurling abuses at a boxer, I decide he is one man with whom I would not care to do business. As a rule, he is a coward, and he will try to squirm out of any contract he may sign if things are not going well with him.

"The same goes for the baseball fan who will yell harsh words at a ball player from a grandstand seat. In the past I have tried to buy a big league baseball franchise. One of my reasons for desiring to own a ball club has been so that I could take this type of fan by the back of the neck, march him to the box office, give him back his money and then throw him out of the park.

"How many men in business have the courage of a ring champion who slowly goes down to defeat after taking unmerciful punishment? I have watched in admiration as a champion has tried to fight off a sensational challenger. I have seen the champion slowly losing his strength and finally go to the canvas under a terrific attack to the jaw. I have watched in keenest admiration as the champion has tried to get up before the count of 10 only to fall back to the canvas in defeat. The standards of a real champion are good enough for any business man to adopt."

EAGLES TO MEET FORDHAM NINE TOMORROW

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY

Coach Hugh Duffy of Holy Cross College baseball squad will leave for New York tomorrow for the Fordham tilt, tomorrow, which is one of the most important games on the Eagle schedule.

The Eagles have three cuts on the Jesuit College lads and a win over Fordham tomorrow will find them in line for an undefeated season. For the New Yorkers have one of the strongest ball teams in their parts and it has already defeated Holy Cross.

Boston College's only skirmish with the Fordham crew was a set-back over Boston Common. The Fordham team was in the midst of a winning streak at that time. The game was played on Monday and it was a cross on Wednesday. The passing of the game said well either a case of Duffy for Boston College and Coach Hughie Duffy.

Hugh M Nulty is going to start for Boston College in the box and Ford [illegible] is in much better working order after a week and a half's rest. Hugh will be going them in tomorrow with old time form.

Bo McMillan will be behind the bat. In the last game Pat Greene and the catching with Lally [illegible] swirling Duffy has proved that two battery-mates almost to perfection.

The first pair are the leaders in the Holy Cross game. Lefty Long [illegible] looked hot socks in the first two innings of the game and seem to be on his way back.

When will work in the Cross game on Monday. He is one of the fine hitting and pitching [illegible] Duffy thinks he is going to have no pitcher to start for B. C. [illegible] he will be in the game [illegible] the second time with Fordham on the month of June.

Hermanson will probably be the Fordham pitcher. He has been pitching great ball this season. He won two [illegible] over Holy Cross early in the season and has been [illegible] who has not been defeated.

Boston College's [illegible] is due to be in the best condition [illegible] Coach Duffy has been [illegible] and Al Wesley [illegible] Cross, and [illegible] and [illegible] be [illegible].

OPEN SATURDAY EVE.

Peterson has ruled a favorite in the early betting, but the chances are the odds will be even by the time the rival thumpers parade to the post.

Mike Collins is here as manager of Peterson. It was Collins who piloted Mike and Tom Dobson up the finale ladder. He says that Peterson he has a southpaw who batter Lee way up the finale he has.

Peterson is a giant in size, standing 6 feet three inches in height and weighing 203 pounds. Schaaf is six feet tall and weighs 192 pounds.

Jack Conway

Schaaf prepared for this bout at Wenham and says he is in condition to set a driving pace from the gong. Ernie is anxious to win in decisive style for if he does he will probably be signed to take a ring go-round in a event which the Crescent Athletic Pool plans to drop in at Braves Field the latter part of next month.

It is expected that Schaaf and Peterson will draw a large crowd to the Arena when the rounders step out. Arrange A. A.'s show to next Monday night has left the field open for the Arena Club.

WITH the show indoors, weather conditions will not have any effect on the bouts. The fans will not have to worry about the show being postponed.

To quote Col. Bob McKirdy: "Schaaf and Peterson will fight at the Arena tonight, rain or shine, so say or shut. You'll get plenty of action."

THE preliminary card, containing names of Clyde Donovan, Worchester welterweight, Marvin Shactor, all-navy heavyweight champion a year ago, and Ely Diamond, brilliant young West End featherweight, is an all-star card of the type that Mickey Mole famous at old Dreamland Park years ago.

Donovan is to be the hard-hitting Canuck Pete Pacheco, Denver fighting who is to make his Boston debut. The cut round semifinal is Pacheco is expected to be a scrapper and can be assured fans that the semifinal will be a slashing battle, as Donovan is due for a shot with Al Mello and Pacheco expects to fight here regularly this summer.

SHACTOR is to box the latest English light heavyweight importation, Sonny Smith, who is now living in Lynn. Smith fought Frank Moody two 15 round battles on the other side in the past year, and expects to fight his way into the main bout class after a few victories here.

HY DIAMOND, who may be one of the best featherweights in the world 12 months from now, to box a protege of Sammy Fuller, Lefty Williams of Lynn, in another of the six rounders, while in the other action battles, Frank Provencher of Three Rivers, Que., will meet the hard-hitting Cari Roche of Everett and Ernie Roux, Canadian heavyweight, will tackle Artie Ryan who has scored some decisive victories for Kerry Village.

Tickets will be on sale at the Arena, at 262 Washington st., room 26, or 348 Washington st., room 313. Reservations may be made by calling Hubbard 4042 or Liberty 8707.

The Coo-Coos Call Every Rainy Day

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

"What do they do, oh, what do they do, on a dew-dew-dewy day?"

That is the text for today's sermon.

This treatise was inspired by some two hundred and sixty four telephone calls received in the last four days by the sports department, and will probably explain why some sport editors and writers look or act strangely at times, and why so many of them are constantly chewing cinnamon bark.

As soon as the heavens begin to weep, or, to speak English, as soon as it begins to rain, the local representatives of the Migratory Workmen, who migrate more than they work, those too strong to engage in gainful labor, and those whose health would be injured if they had to earn a living, gather in diverse places—pool parlors utter sofilies or wherever there is shelter.

BETWEEN shots at the clerk ball or the ginger ale, it seems that discussions arise, usually on matters of sport. But discussions arise, and the subject matter is immaterial as long as it results in an argument.

The argument starts something like this:

The scene is a pool room. Two sports are leaning on their cue sticks.

"Say that Jim Flynn was a great fighter," says one. "All them Irish could fight."

"You're all wet, brother," replies the other. "Jim Flynn was born out West. His father came from Ireland and his mother was an Indian."

"Is that so? Well that's news to me, brother. I heard him talk. He had a brogue on."

"Well I'll bet you two bits that he wasn't Irish."

"All right. Let's call up the Boston Evening American."

And so they call.

Imagine their embarrassment when they receive the reply that Jim Flynn was born in Brooklyn, that his right name is Andrew Chiariglion and that he is an Italian-American.

WHETHER the argument starts as above described or not, does not matter. They start, and the phone rings.

After an interval of a minute or two, the phone will ring again.

"This time it's a heavy bet. Maybe a dollar or the next drink.

"Hello. Is this the sports department? Oh, we want it you should settle a bet. Is Brooklyn a part of New York?"

"Yes it is"

Business of talking aside: "See, I told you"

Then into the phone: "Here, tell this feller"

And the question is repeated: "Is Brooklyn a part of New York?"

Thinking to clarify the issue, we insinuate:

"Yes, Brooklyn is a part of New York. It has no physical connection, that is what you mean, but it is a part of the city of New York politically."

More buzzing at the other end of the line

"He says Brooklyn ain't a part of New York"

And the first voice is heard again.

"Say, didn't you just tell me Brooklyn is a part of New York?"

"Listen," and the speaker adopts the manner of an army sergeant, "I said Brooklyn is a part of New York. It is not a part of New York in the sense that it is a part of New York being physically a part of the city of New York. But it is a part of New York, if you mean the city of New York."

Which, of course, anyone ought to understand.

Voice at the other end: This guy is kiddin' us. Let's call up another paper.

And so it goes.

HERE are but a few of the questions put to the department in the last four days.

"Was John' L. Sullivan ever champion of the world?"

"How did 'Wildcat' McInnis come out in last night's fight?"

"Can you tell me off hand the dates on which the Braves won seven successive games last year?"

"Where are the wrestling bouts at the Arena to be held?"

"Can you tell me how many runs Brooklyn got on April 30?"

"Where can a guy get a good dog?"

"How long will it take to broil a chicken over a charcoal fire?"

So it goes, hour after hour on rainy days. Rainy days, therefore, ought to be abolished by law in order that sports editors and writers may not become extinct.

Wells to Coach at Fairhaven High

Linn Wells of Bloomsburg, Pa., will succeed Delmer Borah as coach of Fairhaven high next September, when the latter leaves to take up his new duties in the same capacity at Newburyport high.

The new Fairhaven coach has handled athletics at Bloomsburg high for the past three years in addition to his high school duties, he also directed the athletics of the junior high teams. He is a graduate of Springfield College and is credited with turning out championship groups in his Pennsylvania set-up.

His one-year contract at Fairhaven includes the directing of physical training in the high school and the seventh and eighth grades in Fairhaven and Mattapoisett. He will coach football, baseball, basketball and track.

READING NINE AT DORCHESTER

Determined to beat the rain this week one way or another Manager Harry Galvin of the Dorchester Town Team will stage his Boston Twilight League opening against Reading this evening at the Dorchester Town Field.

Many city officials have planned to be at the flag raising and assist in the opening ceremonies. Galvin has many of the 1927 favorites back in his lineup, including Bill Cleary in right field, and McDonald, his pitching outfielder, is left, who will team up with Eddie Gill, formerly of the Reading pitching staff.

Bracken will be on third with Marshall, short, Al Shanahan, second, and Al McGuinness, first.

Colgate Wins

Worcester, May 25—Colgate golfers defeated Holy Cross, 5 to 1, on the links of the Worcester Country Club.

A few hundred dollars wisely invested in Boston real estate now will be worth thousands in a few years. See the wonderful property offered today in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads.

NOBLE & GREENOUGH TO ROW GROTON TOMORROW

Those old rivals, Noble & Greenough and Groton school will meet tomorrow afternoon over the mile course on the Concord river at Groton.

Noble, coached by Lawrence Terry, and captained by Richard Blaney, has done splendid work this spring, having won two of the three four-oared races in which it has competed. It was victorious over Middlesex school and Exeter academy and dropped its only race to St. Mark's school at Southboro.

Aggie Harriers' Program

Amherst, May 25—M. A. C. varsity cross-country schedule for next fall comprises one intercollegiate, one triangular and three dual runs, Manager Frank M. Bishop announced today. The dates follow: Oct. 20, St. Stephens and Springfield at Annapolis, N. Y.; Oct. 27, Worcester.

Williams Will Return to Sox Fold This Afternoon

STAR OUTFIELDER IS AGAIN IN SHAPE

By NICK FLATLEY

Ken Williams will bring his devastating bludgeon back to help the Red Sox cause this afternoon, if there is any cause.

The gentle May showers have almost ruined baseball in Boston this spring, and Manager William Carrigan is considering seriously of getting bathing suits for his athletes.

"The big thing about being at home," chirps Bill, "is that you can get in morning practice. That helps you to keep the gang in shape, and to smooth out mistakes, and organize team play, so a rainy day always has a doubly bad effect on the home club, when it's going well.

"I didn't mind missing the opener here, though. We haven't too many pitchers, and the extra day of rest will help. If we can get through this last week at the home with-out sending myself in for relief work, we'll be lucky.

Nick Flatley

"I like this ball club of mine. The boys fought like a bunch of Indians over in New York, and they weren't a bit nervous or flustered because they were playing the champion Yankees. A ball game's a ball game and when it's gone, kicking doesn't bring it back. But we certainly had the worst of the breaks when we lost the two that Ruffing and Russell pitched.

SOX PLAYED HARD

"Anyhow, we gave the Yanks the toughest fight they've had this season. And the closeness of the series will not do the club a bit of harm. Maybe some of the other clubs will look soft to them now."

That's how William, and incidentally his athletes feel about things while Loping that the Senators can be engaged in a p. m. Williams was hurt running into the bleacher wall over in New York, and it was feared that some bones in his arm were broken.

Ken was only bruised and reported this morning ready for trouble. His war club might have knocked off that last New York game.

The Sox have five games with the Senators, one this afternoon, two tomorrow and a pair Monday. Then they engage the Athletics for four in three days. If they can collect the large part of this consignment, they will go West after the holiday firmly entrenched in the first division.

As the various teams have showed here, the Yanks, Athletics and Indians are the only clubs that seem to have any priority standing rights over the Carrigans.

Largo Edward Morris, with four in a row to his credit, will start the pitching part of the program. This young man has now been through the toughest part of the mill, and knows what the big league is all about.

Unless something happens to his arm, and nothing ever has, he will probably draw all the opening assignments from here in. Big Ed still insists that he hasn't reached the peak of his form at all. He complains of stiffness and lameness in his shoulders and chest after each game he chucks.

HURLERS IN SHAPE

This the young man attributes to the cool breezes that flit around the northern ball parks. He has been used to a climate where the boys fry their eggs on the dugout roofs between games of double headers, and he's sure that he will be "reel fast" and able to work every other day with the arrival of summer, if any.

Charlie Ruffing and Jack Russell have both turned in the evidence that they are regular big league hurlers, and all Carrigan is waiting for now is a good full game effort by Bryan Harriss.

The silver did one swell relief job, but around that hasn't showed a thing. His arm isn't sore any more, and Carrigan has the tall boy figured for a regular spot in the pitching act.

Give a manager like Bill four good, dependable pitchers and there's no telling just where he will go, except that it will not be down. If Harriss can round to, the Sox will be real contenders for third place.

PRIDE OF HUB BASEBALL FANDOM

THE $50,000 HAND

Belongs to Big Ed Morris, sensational Red Sox hurler, who has cut quite a figure in American League circles this season. The big fellow reminds fans of the days when "Smokey" Joe Wood was burning them across for the Red Hose. Any pitcher who can baffle the Yanks is worthy of comment, and that's just what Big Ed has done.

Ed Morris, former Mobile star, is pictured above at the completion of his delivery. Ed has become famous overnight as a result of victories scored over the Yankees, Athletics, White Sox and the Senators. The husky Southerner is a hard worker and would toil every day if permitted.

Roses of Memory Cheer "Iron Duke"

New York, May 26 (AP)—Yesterday, for the first time in 83 years, William Muldoon, Old Ironsides of the New York State Athletic Commission, is spending his birthday in bed.

Instead of rising at 6, exercising strenuously for two hours, breakfasting at 8 and then riding horseback for three hours more, the boxer, wrestler, Shakespearean actor and physical culturist is spending the day abed in his room at the hygenic institute near White Plains, N. Y., cut off from friends, telephone and newspapers.

On May 10, Muldoon fell 15 feet from a raised platform to the ground, bumping the back of his head and injuring ribs on his left side. An old touch of neuritis returned and his doctor put him to bed and ordered absolute quiet for the old warrior.

NO MESSAGE.

"I have no message," he told a visitor who won through to his bedside, "and I am still of the opinion that one of the greatest of all virtues is patience for those who are growing old. There is nothing so bad as an impatient, bad tempered old person. They are unhappy themselves, and they make those about them unhappy.

"I am grateful for the privilege of living in these times when there is so much that is wonderful that we can appreciate."

What, asks the New York Herald Tribune, will the "Professor," the old Roman, the Iron Duke, the bold Man—he is given all those titles—be thinking of today as he lies on his bed of pain, silent and alone?

Gene Tunney, perhaps. Fine lad, Gene. Clean and square and brave. Just the kind of fellow the "professor" would like to see more of in the boxing business. He and Gene, who is 30 today, spent their birthdays together last year, the "professor" riding twelve miles through a drizzling rain on horseback to have dinner with Gene at the Biltmore.

Perhaps he'll be thinking of the old days when he was a champion himself—champion of the world at Graeco-Roman wrestling. Took the title from Clarence Whistler and held it several years, retiring undefeated.

GLORIOUS OLD DAYS

Those were the days—four years of service, from 16 to 20, with the army of the Potomac—"mashing" in cheap restaurants and bouncer in dance halls. Six years on the New York police force, then the wrestling and after that the fighters—teaching them, training them, keeping them from drinking themselves to death—brave, glorious old days.

Ah, those fighters. The "professor's" eyes gleam. All champions that he handled, Jack Dempsey, the Nonpareil; Kid McCoy, now in San Quentin Prison, poor lad. And the greatest day of all in 1889 when John L. Sullivan broke nearly all of Jake Kilrain's ribs, but not his heart.

The last epic of the prize ring, the professor says. Seventy-five rounds with bare knuckels and the first only stopped by Mike Donovan throwing the towel in from Jake's corner to keep his fighter from being killed by the Boston strong boy. Kilrain—he had the heart. He'd have died before he'd have quit there in the mud alongside the river at Richburg, Miss.

He'll probably be remembering when he played Charles the Wrestler in "As You Like It," being thrown every night. Trooping as Spartacus the Gladiator—John Drew, Mme. Modjeska, Rose Coghlan, Mrs. Cullough, Georgia Drew Sanding him a bundle to hold one night 'n the wings at St. Louis, and the bundle the infant, Ethel Barrymore. Glorious nights, those.

But his friends say it will be only a little while till the "professor" is back in his gymnasium again.

"E'll live to be a 'undred and then turn into a cigar," is the opinion of Joseph Jared, English physical instructor at the institute.

Sporting World Pays Tribute to Goodwin

Many local boxers and their managers joined in the chorus of grief over the death of Tom Goodwin.

Said Jack Sharkey: "I can never forget that it was Tom Goodwin who gave me my start up the ladder. I was a raw, uncouth kid when he gave me my first chance to show my ability after I was discharged from the navy. He was one of the few who never lost faith in me, and his words of encouragement held me back several times when I was on the point of hanging up the gloves for good."

"His word was his contract," was the tribute of Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager.

"It made no difference whether the gate was good or bad," said Buckley, "Goodwin paid you what he had promised you, even if he lost money himself and you had no contract to hold him to. There would be no need of a boxing commission if all the promoters were like Tom Goodwin. The State and the boxing fraternity are going to miss him badly."

"I have lost my best friend," said Bobby Goldman, manager of Mickey Walker. "I can't say any more than that Tom Goodwin gave me my start, helped me over the obstacles that come in the path of any two entering the boxing game. There are many more besides myself who are going to miss him."

Eddie Mack, though a rival boxing promoter, was one of those who took the death of Tom Goodwin hardest to heart.

"We fought each other tooth and nail," he said, "but Tom was always a square sensoter. We had many an argument on the dates for shows and other points and each of us was anxious to score a point over the other, but Goodwin never took an unfair advantage. Though we were friendly enemies, no news could have shocked me more than the word of Tom Goodwin's death."

"Tom Goodwin was a square shooter, one of the best men in the game," is the tribute paid Goodwin by Paul Bowser, local wrestling promoter.

TOM GOODWIN TO BE BURIED ON SUNDAY

Tom Goodwin's eyes are today closed in a lasting sleep.

New England's boxing world bows its head in grief at the passing of the brilliant matchmaker of the Suffolk A. A. The end came at the Phillips House after an illness of six months.

Funeral services will be conducted Sunday at 12 o'clock at the home of Abraham Goodwin, 126 Franklin st., South Framingham. The funeral cortege will proceed to the Sons of Benjamin Cemetery, Grove st., West Roxbury, where interment will take place at about 1 p. m.

The body will be at the Abraham Goodwin home after 10 o'clock Sunday.

It was only 26 days ago that Goodwin was discharged from the Phillips House after having been a patient there for three weeks. He went to a camp at Wrentham and was thought to be getting better when he had a sudden turn for the worse. He was brought back to the hospital and died a few hours after reaching there.

Goodwin has had the most spectacular career of any boxing matchmaker in New England. He holds all the records for recipts at outdoor and indoor boxing shows in Boston. His career was one new accomplishment after another.

Tex Rickard had followed Goodwin's career closely. Two weeks ago Rickard came to Boston intent on signing Tom as matchmaker of his New Garden at the North Station only to find that Goodwin was ill.

Rickard was told of the seriousness of Goodwin's sickness, but despite this information declared he would not make any selection of a matchmaker until it was a certainty that Tom was not available for the task.

Morgan Wins Over Martin

New York, May 25 (INS)—Ted Morgan, of Seattle, will think twice before risking his junior lightweight crown against Eddie "Cannonball" Martin again. Morgan outpointed the former bantam champion in their 15-round bout here last night, but had to take four of the last six rounds.

Hornsby Lays Down New Set of Rules

The Braves had something to think about as they entrained for Brooklyn last night with Rogers Hornsby at the helm.

The successor to Jack Slattery, in a heart to heart talk with the players in the clubhouse yesterday outlined his system and made it plain to the latest help that its new rules were to be followed to the letter.

[illegible] one of the rules as would [illegible] order for meeting [illegible] was not to [illegible] the words of the new [illegible] was given deep [illegible] Evidently [illegible] thing that got [illegible] the club on departing for the Brooklyn engagement. "Good luck to everybody, will have [illegible]

"I didn't go into any radical changes in the personnel of the club but am going to make a few changes that I think will benefit the team and help escape it to a position in the league it aught to occupy.

"I have told the boys that midnight is the deadline for all social activities. And when I said midnight I meant the same, unless I gave him special permission to do otherwise.

"It is also my intention to use the pitchers in rotation. For instance, I plan to work Genewich in Brooklyn today. Rob Smith and Greenfield in tomorrow's double header and Brandt in the fourth game of the series.

"Another thing I propose to do is to have Johnny Cooney play at first base when we are up against left handed pitching. No doubt, it will take some time to get things working smoothly but we are starting on my system and I plan to give it a fair trial."

Yanks Get Star College Hurler

Philadelphia, May 25 (INS)—Roy Sherrid, Villanova College pitcher, has joined the New York Yankees Cy Moore, last year a champion relief pitcher, is now working in New York and indications are that Roy will be a regular. He has failed to show anything this season.

POEHLER TO BOWL CAPISTO FOR TITLE

As a result of the semifinals for the Suburban League candle pin championship held last night Paul Poehler will meet Archie Capisto for the title at the Eagle alleys, Roxbury, at 8 o'clock tonight. Eddy and McLeod were eliminated while Capisto had a big advantage on Poehler.

Three Classes at Society Ring Show

The committee in charge of the society boxing show to be held in the Copley Plaza ballroom Monday evening, May 28, report after their meeting held today that the entries in the three classes to be contested, 118 pounds, 135 pounds, and 147 pounds, are filling nicely. The committee urges all boxers who desire to compete in this show to file their entries with Tom Kanaly at the M. A. A. immediately. It will be necessary that all entries be filed before Friday night, May 25.

Among the entries already received in the 118 pound class are Angelo Pardugno of Lawrence, Pat Hilliker of Dorchester, Robert Hilker of Roxbury, Vincent Prescott of Cambridge, and Charles Longo of Boston. Entries received in the 135 pound class are Dick Collins of Quincy, Bert Clark of Everett, Gus Russo of Quincy and George Russo of Boston.

One of the features of the evening will be a special bout between Al Knapp of the U. S. N. Putnam and Pat McLaughlin, a fellow-townsman at the Boston Navy Yard.

The wrestling bout is between George McLeod and Bull Komar.

Hanover, N. H., May 25—Joe Murphy, veteran Dartmouth outfielder, who was recently dropped from the squad by Coach Jeff Tesreau, has signed a contract to coach the West Lebanon, N. H., nine for the balance of their season.

Murphy was a leading hitter on the Dartmouth team last year, but Tesreau kept him on the bench this season.

Martha Lee Tells of Various Salads

By MARTHA LEE

CRISP lettuce leaves, watercress, chicory, endive, romaine—each a background for the numerals of salads that American women have brought to perfection! Italy may have its salads of mixed meat, Spain its famous salads of bread and vegetables, Germany its herring and Russia its black truffles, but it is in America that salad as we know it has come into its own.

It is to Marshal Richelieu that the credit is given for the original listing of mayonnaise—and isn't it interesting to know that this word is supposed to come from an old verb meaning to worry or become incensed!

Martha Lee

The name loses its significance, however, when the modern woman simply relies on a ready-prepared mayonnaise rather than struggling with the home-made variety.

A delicious molded fruit salad is made with the following ingredients: 1 pkg of lemon gelatine powder, 2 c boiling water, 4 slices canned pineapple, 4 slices orange, 4 strawberries, 4 sprigs mint.

First, pour the gelatine powder into a bowl and add two cups of boiling water.

Stir until every particle has dissolved, if you wish to have clear, sparkling gelatine. Then pour a small quantity of the mixture in the bottom of individual molds and set in ice water until of the consistency of molasses.

Then remove the mold from the ice water and press the tips of strawberries into the gelatine, add a slice of orange and enough cold liquid gelatine mixture to cover the orange. Then place in ice water until firm.

Let each layer get firm before adding another and be sure that the mixture placed on is cold so that it will not melt the firm layer and in arranging the layers of fruit always remember that the prettiest fruit will be on top when unmolded.

On the first salad next arrange a slice of pineapple, fill hole with cold lemon gelatine and return to ice water until firm.

Then unmold and garnish with nut and honey mayonnaise, made by adding 2 tsps. of honey to 1 c. of mayonnaise.

A delicious Sea Dream salad is made with these ingredients:

One package of lemon gelatine powder, 1 c. boiling water, 1 c. grated cucumber, 1 tbsp. vinegar, 1 tbsp. onion juice, a dash of cayenne, 1/2 tsp. salt. Some green coloring matter.

Dissolve the package of lemon gelatine powder in the cup of boiling water. Add the grated cucumber, vinegar, onion juice, cayenne and salt and press through a sieve. Add a few drops of green coloring, turn into a shallow pan and put in ice water until firm.

Then cut in squares and garnish with sliced cucumber and water cress. To cut gelatine, cut with a sharp knife dipped in warm water. To unmold dip the mold up to the edge in warm water, place a tray or plate over it and turn over together. Shake and lift off the mold.

Cheese Salad is made with these ingredients: 1 package of lemon gelatine powder, 1½ c. boiling water, 1 c. grated cheese, 1 tbsp. vinegar, ½ c. mayonnaise, 1 tsp. salt.

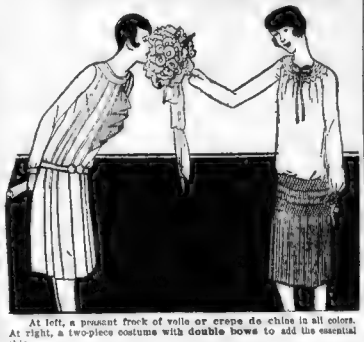
Dissolve the gelatine powder in the boiling water and let cool. Add the vinegar, salt and cayenne and whip with a rotary beater until the consistency of whipped cream. Combine the cheese and mayonnaise and fold together with the gelatine.

Turn into a ring mold and set in ice water until firm. Unmold and fill the center with lettuce leaves and serve with bar le duc or currant dressing (if these, of bar le duc or currant jelly and 1 c. of mayonnaise is added. Or, you might unmold a glass of currant jelly in the center of the ring mold and encircle the salad ring with crisp lettuce and garnish with mayonnaise piped through a pastry bag.

Tomorrow I will have some interesting suggestions and recipes for biscuit muffins, etc., to serve with salads.

Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE.

Attractive Costumes



At left, a peasant frock of voile or crepe de chine in all colors. At right, a two-piece costume with double bows to add the essential chic.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Some of the girls in our sorority say that it is proper to wear gloves when dressed formally, removing them when you remove your wraps, after reaching your destination. The others say it is improper to wear gloves when you are hatless. Dear lady, kindly inform us what is correct.

2—Is my handwriting too bold?

3—Also, is the stationery appropriate for sorority correspondence?

LILY.

IT is only on the rarest occasions nowadays that one sees a woman wearing long white kid gloves with evening clothes, even on the most formal occasion. For instance, there are several women who sit in the Golden Horseshoe in the Metropolitan Opera House in New York who still wear long white kid gloves with their evening clothes. But even at the most formal dinners nowadays gloves are not worn. However, when you are driving some distance, it is a good idea to wear white gloves to protect your hands, removing the gloves as you take off your wrap.

3—No, your handwriting, I think, is very good-looking. With a very small amount of effort, you will have a very large reward in the appearance of your handwriting, and the first effort you should make is to form every letter most carefully especially your o's, a's and i's.

Also, you will get a more artistic appearance to your letter if you leave a margin on all four sides of your handwriting on the page. This gives the appearance of a "frame" for your page.

3—Yes. Although, for my taste, the shade is much too dark.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

We are moving to a suburban town and I understand the neighbors generally call.

I would not know what to do. Is one supposed to offer tea? Just what is expected? A READER.

WHEN the neighbors come to call —that about "this and that." And since calls are often made at the hours about tea time, it is hospitable to offer tea. And few things make a call more pleasant than this most friendly of beverages.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

In a cabaret, is it proper for a man to rise from his chair when a lady joins the table?

A READER.

IN a cabaret or ANYWHERE ELSE it is proper for a gentleman to rise when a lady joins his party.

LITTLE MISS (1) Yes. (2) This is a Norwegian custom, not common in America. (3) You may stop if you choose.

MRS. S. M. D.—At 8 o'clock would be proper for the party. We have no list of games.

Air and manners are more expressive than words.—Richardson.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE D'ALROY.

IN this long run we call LIFE, a wife is often like a SHOE. She is expected to help carry man along, and must never look shabby.

Some men get their shoes SHINED every morning, but their manners to the wife are anything but POLISHED before leaving home. Now this is BAD. For if even a good shoe needs a little ATTENTION to make it smart, why should not a nice woman need a little attention to make HER same, too?

Of course, not MUCH can be expected of a husband at breakfast time, because he has all his day's WORK weighing on his mind. But even so, a smart man should be able to say goodbye to his wife without TREADING on her corns.

Of course, the shoe a man picks out for a WIFE, may not always be the most SERVICEABLE or the most COMFORTABLE one. For most men look at the STYLE of a shoe, and consider that more than its durability.

Say FRENCH HEELS, for example, arouse more interest than reliable English SOLES in the American's manly breast. For what he wants usually is not a woman who will be RELIABLE forever, but one who is beautiful NOW.

Of course, if a man can get a shoe that is SMART yet comfortable, elegant yet PRACTICAL, he is extremely fortunate—for if the QUALITY is there, it will retain its shape, stand a lot of WEAR and tear, and though it may get a little run down in time, he has only to send it away and it will return MENDED and ready to carry on.

Some men, of course, let their wives get so run down that they finally feel ASHAMED of them, and want to dispense with them. If the wife has HELPED them over the rough places on the rocky road to success, this is HARD; for if she is nearly OLD, or tired she will remain on the sidewalks of life, without her DUE recognition. The remote of these men seems to be that what CANNOT be repaired must be REPLACED.

They then set out to find some FANCY slipper, who will probably trip them up; in any case she is pretty sure to PINCH them after a while, for she will want to STEP out when the man wants to stay in.

Of course, many a woman gets for a husband a man who has been half-soling several times before she got him, but it does not HURT her if she does not KNOW. In fact, she benefits, for experience is always easier to live with than the lack of it.

Phone Grocer Madam

...he'll tell you about a new quick way to wash dishes

No more reddened hands. No soapy film. See how china sparkles and glasses glisten when washed this easy way

JUST pick up the phone. Ask your grocer for Super Suds. And tonight after dinner you'll discover a new quick way to wash dishes ... worlds better than you've ever known before.

It's so easy, Madam, you'll hardly believe your eyes.

Just pour a little bit of this new-type soap in your dishpan. Then instantly ... with a whisk and a swish, you get rich, active suds.

In go the dishes. Off come the grease and grime. Give them a hot rinse and let them drain and dry by themselves.

No dish towels. No polishing. No soapy film. It's simply wonderful to see how dishes gleam and glisten when washed this new quick way.

And even more wonderful is the way this new soap leaves your hands. No redness. No roughness.

First bar soap—then chips ... now Super Suds

Years ago women had only bar soap—but that was unsatisfactory. How hard they had to work getting a soapy solution, and how hard it was to rinse away those clinging soap particles.

Next came chips. Many women changed to this form of soap because it could be stirred into a cleansing solution. But clothes and dishes had to be rinsed too much in order to get rid of the undissolved soap.

Now comes Super Suds, and women are changing to it by the thousands in preference to all other forms of soap.

Super Suds is not a chip ... not a powder ... but a remarkable new form of soap in tiny hollow "beads," so thin that they burst into suds the instant they touch water.

Four times as thin as chips, Super Suds is the thinnest soap made.

Why Super Suds is better

In this new soap women have discovered two distinct advantages:

The biggest box on the market for a dime! And it gives you the cleanest, whitest clothes you ever saw

Dishes sparkle in no time now! Just pour a little Super Suds into your dishwater. Put in the dishes. Then a quick hot rinse and dishes are ready for drying. It's wonderfully kind to your hands, too, Madam

First, Super Suds is so thin it dissolves instantly ... saves time and trouble.

Second, Super Suds dissolves completely ... no undissolved soap to leave spots on clothes or film on dishes. Women like Super Suds because it does the work faster and better than any other form of soap.

Washes clothes whiter —with far less work

Super Suds works wonders on washday, too! You never saw a soap that gets clothes clean so quickly and easily. The rich soapy solution soaks away all grease and grime. No tedious rubbing and scrubbing ... your clothes are out on the line in half the usual time. And it's the biggest box of soap on the market for ten cents!

Please make this simple test

Madam, don't take our word for all this. Test Super Suds out for yourself. Just buy one box and compare it with the soap you're using now. Try it for dishwashing ... and then for laundry work.

If you don't feel it's as good as we say, then go back to your old soap ... and you're only out ten cents.

But we know you'll agree with all these other women who call Super Suds "the greatest soap they ever used."

Put it down on your grocery list today

Adventure and Romance Amid Scenes of Almost Barbaric Splendor

CHAPTER 24

I waited for a week or more after the mail steamer carrying my friend was due, and decided to return to Sinclair and put in my time in patience with Here Shiff and his assistant. I had not long to wait however before the messenger came with orders to send round the tug to Gaboon with the remaining Ivory he might have on hand as this way to complete a consignment now awaiting shipment by the S. S. Angola on her return from Gabenda at the mouth of the Congo.

I also received my mail and also a letter from little Peru (Mr. Graham). Come at once if possible, I am anxious to see you. In a short while the tug was ready, and giving a fond goodbye to all we steamed west with my boat towed behind. We only made one stop at Angola for firewood, and the little tug Ioscha gave a splendid account of herself.

As I neared our main store at Coco Beach I could see the schooner Ruby Queen and could see standing aft, through my glasses, a tall, well built fellow dressed in white duck, he was waving his handkerchief and gesticulating frantically. It was my college chum, little Peru, now grown to a young man of splendid physique and alongside of him also waving his arms stood Captain King, master of the Ruby Queen.

I altered the course of the tug at once and was soon alongside the Ruby Queen with one spring and vault I was alongside my old mate and we more than hugged so that even old Captain King wondered why such a meeting.

My best friend in the world, and he had grown a perfect man, a kindly, intelligent face, he was over six feet high and had a mustach. I could not realise that the little lad I had left at college was the same, but when he commenced to joke and open up it was certainly he.

He, too, wondered that a little lad that had been his playmate and had left him had grown so much and looked, as he said, a bronze picture of health in this deadly climate of the West Coast and was now standing by his side.

'The Ruby Queen Had Been Built For an Old Sea Dog'

We drank a Moet and Shandon to Capt. King and his schooner and a spin on board that night. The Ruby Queen had been built as a yacht for an old seadog who had made wealth in the good old sea days. She was fitted up and built regardless of cost was a splendid sailor and had been around the world more than once, and had been bought by the firm on the death of her owner who had succumbed to fever at Gaboon.

We were up early next morning as the Ioscha was due to sail in the afternoon. We dined with our Chief Agent and I bade him a fond good-bye as also did my friend Mr. Graham. I sailed at two o'clock carrying Grahame luggage and never saw the good soul Mr. Carlisle again. He died of fever in Liverpool shortly before the day set for his wedding.

We had a glorious trip to the Ogowe and as Graham had brought a beautiful Spanish guitar with him and was an expert player, having been taught to play the instrument in his early childhood, he could nearly make it talk, and I was never tired of hearing him play and sing, especially the true version of the old Spanish Fandango with variations.

He could soon tune his instrument to accompany the Native Ngonni or Iiarp and the two instruments played together sounded heavenly, as the sounds were much better on calm water than on land.

We entered the river and had some fine shooting. He was a good shot with either rifle or six shooter, in fact surprised me. He had lots of practice in England but had also private tuition on the use of the shooter and he gave me quite a few good tips, especially shooting right and left, using each weapon consecutively. I soon caught the dodge and with a little practice I could use left and right without loosing any time in false motion.

'Before We Arrived Off the Beach He Had Obeyed Orders'

Good weapons were of course essential and I was soon taught as I was always fond of the use of the gun. We now neared Nina's place and I told him so. Furthermore he must be ready for an agreeable surprise. Why? he said. I said nothing but noticed he commenced to pay a little attention to his looks, arranged his hair and asked me if it was usual to go without a coat, as I was in negligee. Yes, I said, yes, but you are a first visitor so it would be well for you to be comme il faut.

Before we had arrived off the beach he had obeyed orders. Nina, I saw, was hurrying forward the couple, so I led him to the large spacious visitors' hunt, which was always mine only when I arrived. It was a perfect model of African Savagery, animal skins were thrown over the seats in a rough and ready style, but the floor and walls were strewn with native mats of rare pattern and spears of various kinds hanging around ever ready for use completed a most charming decorative effect.

Above all everything was clean and tidy and was used principally by Nina who superintended personally the sanctorum of this voodoo town. As Ranchoro knew the run of the place he had brought up a few bottles of strong liquor for the use of visitors, the first of whom to put in an appearance was the Old Man, who had instructed me when I had been initiated.

He invited us to be seated, and to my friend Graham, upon he eyed largely, he said: "You are my honored guests. You are welcome and rest contented as you are under my roof." I translated what he had said and Graham thanked him and as the bottles were on the table, I said These are yours, Father, and he smilingly helped himself and friends, who were never more than six or eight men and were employed in and around the house of Iaoga.

'Beautiful Faces'

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

"Beautiful faces are those that wear
The light of a pleasant spirit there,
It matters not if dark or fair."

LITTLE girls used to solemnly write that in one another's little plush albums. Albums and that saying and the belief in that saying have gone out of fashion, so the dashing ones say. Do you 'member those little books full of labored verses; melancholy ones, facetious ones, comic ones, flowery ones, ones gotten backward, and home-made ones by little boys? I had one of blue plush with a pink celluloid rose glued on the back. In the very front it still says, "Dear Nellie—Always be a good girl. Your Mother." There is nothing funny—only what is beautiful and simple and tender—about that!

But comic pages! "Violets are blue and roses are red, honey is sweet and so are you! Richard." "When I am far across the sea will you sometimes think of me? Lily." Lily had never seen the sea, and as far as her folks knew she never would, being a small, round head set down in the hazy waves of that other sea, the prairie. "I like you and your dog—indeed you a very nice girl—well goodbye—Willie." Willie went with the Scots to the skirling of the pipes in the Big War. So DID saw the sea.

Then last—flourished in that copy book script that a little kid's teacher lends a refined touch with—this old-fashioned couplet that adorns this pic. If you find its wording out-of-date that's easily metamorphosed. For the meaning isn't obsolete. It's as true as ever it was then. In other words . . . Beautiful faces are those that wear the light of a pleasant spirit. It does not matter whether you are a dark haired or the kind that gentlemen are supposed to prefer. THAT won't help you, if your hair and eyes are . . . [illegible] . . . if you are hard to take anywhere, critical, hard to please, and hard to tease!

That doesn't mean that you must grin like a "Cheesy Pussy" all the time; but both a fellow and a family appreciate deeply the girl who is easy to please, and think her very beautiful. BEAUTY alone isn't enough to write a story about. BUT—Beauty and Amiability. My word—that's a lady-angel!

—NELL BRINKLEY.

'Little Sins'; Alan Displays the Great Power of His Love

shoulder. She heard his heart. Like a muted gong, it was. Or no, like a tennis ball racketed fast, time and time and time again, against a wall Vaguely she heard his voice. It was saying things. Husky, inarticulate things. Things about his love for her. Poor Alan. Oh poor, poor Alan. To be hurt as she was hurt.

"—and you'd never listen," he was saying. "Well, now you've got to listen! Whether you give a damn about me or not. Oh, Gay—darling—couldn't you love me just a little bit? I'm not much. I'm not brilliant like Tim, or lousy rich like Wyman, or a knockout for looks like some of 'em—I don't but very high any way you look at it—but listen; nobody ever will love you like I do. Nobody could' and I'd try so. work so hard, to make you happy. You don't know! Because you're—why, Gay, you're just simply everything, that's all. Everything there is in the world, to me. If I don't have you there won't be anything. Not one single thing—"

She met her own very words, she reflected pityingly.

He talked on. She lay motionless as good as settled. Read this column for more news on the subject.

HOLLYWOOD has gone talking picture mad. Every studio is making plans to produce one or more talkies immediately. "The Girl From Argentine," starring Carmel Myers, is going to give Carmel a chance to use her ukelele and her voice. It will have a vamp accompaniment.

Flirtations is being installed at First National for "No, No, Nanette," the musical comedy which will be produced intact. Even Irving Thalberg has been said to the talking idea. I found him perusing various manuscripts and planning to make a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer sound picture.

There is a chance that Clarence Brown's next picture, starring Greta Garbo and Jack Gilbert, I believe they call it "The Carnival of Love," will depart from the realms of the silent drama.

LITTLE Sue Carol, who came to Hollywood and knocked them cold with her big black eyes, is going to be given every chance for success by Cecil B. DeMille. I was wondering what they could do with little Sue when a gossipy member of the film colony announced that Sue would in all likelihood play opposite Rod La Rocque in "Swagger," his next picture to be directed by E. H. Griffith.

Sue has come along fast and it wouldn't surprise anyone out here if she is a headliner before next year this time. That is what happens. Either they get ahead in Hollywood or they don't.

CONSTANCE TALMADGE has been told to get her costumes ready for "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," which means that Joseph Schenck has made her selection as John Barrymore's leading lady official. The order came just before he took the train East.

Connie had five or six other offers made her. One came from Warners for the Jolson picture, one from Columbia, and one from First National, so, you see, there was no immediate danger of her starving to death, if she didn't get to play Mrs. Cheyney. But the role was made for her and, with Ernest Lubitsch directing, ye gods, what a chance for both Connie and Barrymore.

WHILE Jack Dempsey has been training every day in the Manhattan gym his wife has not been exactly idle herself. Those who know Estelle Taylor realize she couldn't be idle. It's not her nature. This time she has been listening to three offers to make pictures.

I am of the opinion at this writing that tomorrow she will decide to put her name on a contract for Columbia to star in "Publicity." That is the name of the forthcoming Harry Cohn opera and Harry has decided that Estelle is the girl he wants for the part. So it's probably

Then came Alan's voice. Quiet, now, and reflective. "I suppose it will, at this hour. You won't put it off till morning? . . . That's the spirit! Tell him I agree with him. A fickle public is always fickle. . . . Yes, playing bridge. I'll get him and be right over . . . Oh to make up some excuse . . . No, not a soul but Ted, I swear it . . . Listen, tell Banks to get out some of that champagne . . . Connie, you're forgiven! . . . All right, dear. See you in a few minutes."

Mrs. Matthews hung up the receiver and beaming, went with all speed to collect her husband, her coat and her car.

Friday at midnight. . . .

The walls of the cabaret were lined with pleated silk and the silk was pinned at intervals with lights like dull gold broncho's. From the rafters on 50 jumbled tables thin silver rings dangled up, up, up and form a diabhanous parasol close under the ceiling. There was a disk of ebony hardwood whereon patent leather shoes were as magnets to little burnished slippers. There was a cluster of musicians who cried through their horns for cafe chicken and kisses and the moon.

At a table in the corner near the musicians Nick Blandish was entertaining in honor of Doll Quinn.

"While the pageant is on," he had said all week, "you're to be a good little girl and get to bed early. Then as soon as it's over I'll stage a big blowout for you."

"Whether I win or not?" Dolly had demanded.

"Whether you win or not."

This was the blowout. The particpants numbered fourteen. Five were newspaper men and girls who had covered the pageant elsewhere. To Nick until four days ago, but had also been. A sixth was a young woman who had been [illegible] for one of the [illegible] had [illegible] was present with a [illegible] fuller blonde was [illegible] for now and [illegible] and [illegible] me for hours. Libations were poured out of the bottles that said "ginger ale" and "imported ginger ale, and out of bottles that said "Ginger Ale" and Bed.

Dolly sat beside Nick at the head of the table, wearing the most effective of her one evening dresses. It was a white chiffon velvet, soft and pearly. She was very merry. With the strung, half giddy merriment of almost complete exhaustion. It had been a terrific day. Again and again, as she danced and laughed and chattered, her mind went over its events and she thought: "A wonder I'm not just worn to a frazzle!" But that she was.

The final judging had taken place in the morning, and had been a day's work in itself. From eleven [illegible] to what he hopes is China; with the same attention, with the same ecstatic and [illegible] mein. "My dear!" she squealed. And then, "Darling!" And then, "Oh, my dear!"

After a minute she got to her feet again. "Of course!" she crowed delightedly. "Try to do it without me! What? . . . No, I don't! . . . Yes, I suppose it will, at this hour. You won't put it off till morning? . . . That's the spirit! Tell him I agree with him. A fickle public is always fickle. . . . Yes, playing bridge. I'll get him and be right over . . . Then a member of the pageant committee had collected the votes and deposited them in a golden apple, the size of a basketball, and sealed the apple.

In the afternoon the final parade Dolly's third long trip down the tumultuous human lane of the Boards walk. Virginia Valli Will Star in "Rainbow"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

(Copyright, 1928, by International News Service.)

LOS ANGELES, May 25—Neither Virginia Valli nor her loyal and devoted friends will drop a single hint as to whether her intentions toward Charles Farrell are matrimony or friendship. Virginia has a way of being very non-committal and exceptionally conservative when a subject concerns her. Since we cannot seem to induce Miss Valli to talk about her private affairs, it is at least interesting to know that she is about to begin work on "The Rainbow" for Tiffany Stahl and Company.

"The Rainbow," it may please our readers to know, is the first of the one million five hundred thousand dollar productions to be directed by Reginald Barker. I don't know what portion of the sum will be spent on the first Barker special, but they tell me that the company will be taken to Nevada for exteriors, and you know that counts up.

The mysterious desert and its lure will be a considerable part of "The Rainbow," written by L. G. Rigby, who also authored "The Toilers."

THE pounds Molly O'Day is dropping in the steam baths at Hot Springs will mean money in the bank for her. Al Rockett rues to deny that Molly's contract was ever broken or even cracked by First National. Rockett sponsored Molly's first screen appearance in "The Patent Leather Kid," Richard Barthelmess' first picture, and he is not letting a few extra pounds of weight discourage him.

On the contrary, he is grooming her to co-star with Jack Mulhall in "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," in case Molly lives up to his expectations and comes home as thin as he expects, she will be Jack Mulhall's future starring partner, Dorothy Mackaill having graduated to individual stardom. As that, Dot has to make one more with Mulhall, "Waterfront," which will take her to San Francisco. David Wark Griffith certainly started something when he announced he would like to have Molly for the lead in "The Pioneer Woman."

How To Improve Your Complexion

The secret of a good complexion lies in having a clear, unclouded skin. Age has not as much to do with the possession of this valuable charm as many suppose, for many women grow well up in the forties have beautiful, white, soft, fresh-looking skin and radiant complexions. On the other hand many girls still in their teens have dull, colorless skin and poor complexions. The reason for this lies in the care given your face and hands. Any woman who desires a good clear, youthful looking, white, pretty skin should get from her Druggist a little Ice-Mint and apply this at night just before retiring. This nourishes and revitalizes the skin, giving it a fresh, youthful appearance that is a delight to the user. Ice-Mint is used on either face, neck, hands or arms and even a single application will prove its power to rejuvenate and beautify the skin either for young or old. Ice-Mist can be had at any Druggist at little cost and its truly marvelous face lifting properties,

The Attraction of Opposites is again given a fashion significance. What could represent a vaster difference than the soft printed silks that are now being combined with a plain color knitted woolen frabric in developing some of the most striking sports frocks? Blue and white prints, and those printed designs with vivid red in them, represent the most adjust patterns.

It's All on Again

By Frank Smiley

I'M BEGINNING TO BELIEVE I WAS WRONG NOT TO TAKE THE SHOW TO CHICAGO! I HATE TO BE A QUITTER—AND, BESIDES, I MAY BE THROWING AWAY MY CHANCE FOR FAME AND FORTUNE!
WHY, BABE—WHAT—
GUY, I WANT TO URGE YOU JUST ONCE MORE—DON'T GIVE UP WITHOUT A STRUGGLE! I'M CONVINCED THAT IF YOU'LL OPEN IN CHICAGO WITH NEW COSTUMES AND SCENERY, THE SHOW WILL BE A BIG HIT!
GREAT MINDS RUN IN GROOVES! I WAS JUST TRYING TO SELL MYSELF THE SAME IDEA. SINK OR SWIM, SURVIVE OR PERISH, HIT OR FLOP, I'LL DO IT!
CRIMMINY CRICKETS! IF I'D KNOWN YOU'D DO THIS I'D HAVE MADE MY MIND UP LONG AGO!
GUY'S MIND CHANGES LIKE AN EXPRESSION! AND OF COURSE HE'S TOO DENSE TO SENSE THAT BABE'S IN LOVE WITH HIM! WELL— ON TO CHICAGO!

STICK TO IDEALS

By LUCY LOWELL

WHAT most of us need to make us happier, more efficient successful—all around more nearly what we would be if we could—is the wish and the will to bring our ideals into our daily living and so get closer to them, realizing them in so far as is possible, but at least never losing touch with them.

"All higher motives, ideals, convictions, sentiments in a man are of no account if they do not come forward to strengthen him for the better discharge of the duties which devolve upon him in the ordinary affairs of life," said Henry Ward Beecher.

The value of ideals, of course, is not primarily concerned with what they may help us to do at some future time.

The fact that ideals exist in any mind should so influence that mind that all the thoughts which go through it, every action it dictates, each word it permits to be spoken will be noticeably upon a level above the common run.

Ideals, indeed, should influence and change the fabric of the mind and this so practicably and entirely that the one possessing them will do stalwart deeds as a matter of course, not as the unusual or attention-lashing thing.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By HELEN ROWLAND

LILITH was Adam's first wife—and he appears to have been perfectly content with her, until he discovered that she had "no soul."

That is what so many men discover, along about 40 or 45, when they have made their fortunes, are able to afford two automobiles, and are not yet ready to take up golf as a life work.

• • •

Usually, the discovery that a wife has "no soul" comes about the time that her ankles are beginning to get a little thick, and she develops the first worry wrinkles around the eyes.

• • •

Junking the old wife for something new and flashy with all the modern improvements, is getting to be almost a popular custom in these days of painless divorce, youth culture and sentimental restlessness.

In nine cases of out ten, the soul-mate turns out to be far longer on dimples, knees, silk hosiery and lipstick than on SOUL. But it doesn't take much to convince a man who is bored with domesticity and tired of coffee kisses, that you and he are "mated in the luminous void."

When a wife (after 10 or 20 years of walking the baby, getting the children off to school and putting mustard plasters on her husband) begins to get just a little harder on the eyes, she is apt to be a little harder on the nerves, too. And almost any fresh, virile, young thing who knows how to coo sympathetically into a man's ear can make him believe that he is "misunderstood" and that there is "something lacking" in his life.

Once upon a time, a married man was considered his wife's sacred property. But now, the world seems to be full of love-poachers and sentimental highwaywomen, who have no regard for any woman's property rights.

There appears to be no way of "hog-tying" a husband. Putting him on a leash, labeling him "sold" or making him wear a wedding ring would only make him more tempting, like the "Do not handle" sign on the things in the shops.

Most of the time, this "mental companionship," which he fancies he has found, turns out to be merely a new brand of perfume, a new make of face-powder and a new line of flattery. But while the dalliance lasts, he will risk losing all that he has spent his life in building—his home, his life-mate and his dignity—for a little new thrill which he fondly thinks is a "spiritual experience."

• • •

It is just Nature's last protest against the drabness of approaching middle age. It is the glamor of Indian summer, the most dangerous hour in a man's life, when he is walking on the edge of a precipice and looking at the stars.

• • •

But instead of "junking the old wife"—then, if ever, should be cling to her, until the fever has passed and he has her to steady again.

SIZE IS NOT IMPORTANT FEATURE IN SUCCESS

By J. J. MUNDY

IF you are a small man, don't try to assume an important air to offset your size physically.

If you are a big man don't try to bulldoze your way through the world in order to create the impression of importance.

In either case the offender becomes amusing as well as ridiculous.

Stature does not signify the measure of mentality.

The person who considers the man of small stature as inferior, is so small himself that the undersized man should not be annoyed by his opinions.

It is not necessary for the little man to do anything for the avowed purpose of making himself appear intellectually big.

If he is gifted with a good mind, knows his line of endeavor, he does not have to make especial effort to present this fact.

The large man, with little more than his size to recommend him, will not get far on it.

Be yourself and you will win more than trying to be like someone else.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE ☆ ☆ BOSTON ~~EVENING~~ AMERICAN ☆ ☆ BOSTON, MAY 25, 1928

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land, in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotels, may be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlasting at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New Englandagriculture to better marketing methods.

Rum in the State House

Shocking!—But There Are Other Matters of More Importance

If State officials, State House employes or State House hangers-on have been given entry to the State House cache of confiscated liquors and permitted to help themselves the situation can only be described as deplorable.

We observe that there are calls for an investigation, and we suppose it will be forthcoming.

Let no guilty man escape.

But it will be just as well if the great majority of us, who are neither fanatics nor reformers, will try to hold our sense of proportion.

The larger issues at the State House just now are (1) a rearrangement of the relation between Greater Boston and the Elevated railway system and (2) the affair of the Attorney-General of the Commonwealth and the complaint which has been made against him.

While the crime-engendering, corruption-breeding and graft-promoting Eighteenth Amendment remains with us, together with the apparently impotent Volstead Act, we shall have no license to expect anything but one rum scandal after another.

Steady! and keep your eyes on the main issues.

A City Helpless

Directors of the Elevated Will Bring Relief to Governor Square When THEY FEEL LIKE IT

When residents of Bay State Road appeared before the Board of Street Commissioners, to object to the Dr. Miller McClintock plan to open that thoroughfare to the motor truck, Commissioner Charles T. Harding asked a question which may have suggested itself to others.

"Why should trucks be excluded from Bay State Road when they are admitted without hindrance to residential streets in Dorchester and other sections?"

That was a reasonable question and it was promptly answered.

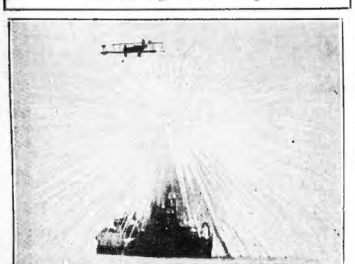
"Because, unlike Dorchester and other parts of the city, Bay State Road is built upon "made" land and hence is particularly susceptible to vibration."

As we understand it Dr. McClintock's thought is that no traffic arrangement or regulation should be adopted unless it has the support of public opinion. What he had in view in this Bay State Road recommendation was a way out of the insufferable tangle at Governor Square. The best solution of that snarl would be an extension of the Boylston Street subway. In the way of that improvement stand the directors—not the Public Trustees—of the Boston Elevated Railway Company.

Who can move the directors of the Elevated if THEY won't budge?

Just How It Works

When Air Fighters Find Targets

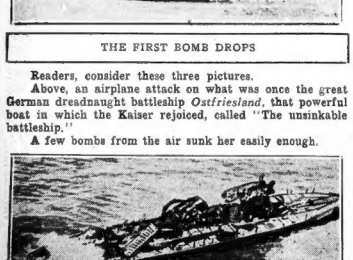


THE FIRST BOMB DROPS

Readers, consider these three pictures.

Above, an airplane attack on what was once the great German dreadnaught battleship Ostfriesland, that powerful boat in which the Kaiser rejoiced, called "The unsinkable battleship."

A few bombs from the air sunk her easily enough.



THE "UNSINKABLE" SINKING

Here you see how the bombs strike.

The second picture shows you that same "unsinkable ship" after a brief, inexpensive bombing, ready to roll over and go to the bottom, which she did a few minutes later.

The third picture shows the protection of the fighting airplane, a thick smoke screen in which the air-fighters are invisible. Planes operate together. Some very fast, going

AROUSING A DESIRE FOR LEARNING

By DR. FRANK CRANE

FOOD is no good unless there is a hunger for it. Water is not relished unless you are thirsty.

And the correlative of these facts is that teaching does not do much good unless there is first a desire to be taught.

That is a successful teacher, therefore, who arouses in his pupils a desire for learning. The teacher is not someone in charge of the knowledge supply whose sole business it is to ladle out information to inquiring minds. His business is to create an appetite. When a boy or girl wants to learn he can be said to have the rudiments of culture. Not until then.

The Metropolitan High School of Los Angeles probably is doing real teaching. It finds the boys and girls who have not the opportunity for regular schooling and supplies them with that training they need.

There is a law in the State of California that every child of a certain age must attend school at least four hours a week. This is not much, but it is some. It provides that the young shall not be left wholly without training. The Board of Education of Los Angeles complies with this law by using the Metropolitan High School on Venice Boulevard, whose business it is to take care of these part-time students.

How well it does this is shown by the figures that it has an average of 5800 students morning and afternoon.

In many instances the children are taken out of school because their parents are financially unable to dispense with their services. By means of this school children are enabled to work in some gainful occupation and, at the same time, pursue their education, learning to be more efficient in their calling as well as acquiring useful knowledge.

Think of what it means to a community to have an organized band of interested men and women to whom a youth can turn should he desire employment, instead of being forced to hawk his abilities from door to door in the long and gruelling process of finding something to do!

The education of youth is so important a matter that everyone should take part in it. It should not be confined entirely to the schoolroom, but employers should co-operate with the school teachers.

More and more the idea is growing that the first essential of a good education is to enable a person to stand squarely upon his own feet and to be beholden to nobody. The first requisite of an American citizen is work, not any form of charity, and this school teaches the youth how to find work.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVE been writing these articles for nine years.

During that time I have devoted at least three hours each day to working with troubled people, trying to help them. Thousands of people. All kinds of trouble. Kinds of trouble sheltered folk never know.

People with crippled bodies, broken hearts and blighted brains. People made desperate by poverty or distorted by wealth. Criminals. Hophends. Bootleggers. People fumbling on the border line of insanity. Diseased people whose haunted eyes stared out of loathsome living tombs.

For nine years I have walked with people through every variety of human hell, sharing the reek and the shame of their beastliness and greed, their cowardice and dishonesty—seeing all the pitiful scabs and sores that sick souls can breed.

And you'd think I'd be fed up on humans.

You'd think that sights like that would make any sensible person despise the mass of men and wonder why God ever made such maggots.

But I'm not—and I don't.

The more I see of human beings, the more I marvel at them and believe in them.

Here they are messing along, most of them with half-baked minds in ramshackle bodies, poor, bewildered things, not half as well equipped to make a world for themselves as a bunch of moles. And yet, in spite of their weakness and ignorance, doing the most amazing and beautiful things!

Such tenderness in great, hairy bullies of men—

Such courage in puny, cringing little women—

Such loyalty and decency and pride!

And selfish, greedy brutes sacrificing their lives for someone they loved.

For nine years in this office, and before that for other years on deserts, in mines, on cattle trails, in outlaw shacks, I've starved and sweated and worked and fought and prayed and cussed with my fellow man until I know him, clear through to his most secret cell, from his matted hair to his calloused heel.

And my reverence and love for him has grown with every hour of my life.

I TELL YOU HE'S GREAT!

And it's my conviction that, barring the insane, everyone wants to be good. No matter how low they are, how ignorant, how bitter or bewildered, they always have a dream of getting out of the mess and starting straight.

And most of them would do it if we'd give them the chance they need.

Punishments won't heal them—rewards won't help them. What they need is to be treated white. YOUR FAITH IN THEIR FUNDAMENTAL DECENCY! YOUR HAND OUTSTRETCHED TO THEIR PRIDE!

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THROUGH all the changeful days I weave
My bit of tapestry;
The hours fleetly pass, but leave
Designs and hues for me.

This portion glows with joys I knew
Upon a summer morn;
This, radiant as the sky's own blue,
Shows when a hope was born.

But if, sometimes, slow, sombre hours
My work with gloom imbue,
I see these threads as foils for flowers.
I weave with thoughts of you!

New York Day by Day

By O.O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, May 25—Thoughts while strolling: A mustache fixer sneaks a few peeps in a window mirror. Laddie Sanford, the polo player. Whatever became of Brussels carpets? Those roly-poly Broadway fellows with squeaky voices and tightly-clenched cigars—awaiting the big bi uks.

The flip young things swathed in summer furs. The sidewalk crowd in front of the Hotel Somerset. Lee Simonson, the scenic artist. Crystal chandeliers again. And men's collar points grow longer. The lugubrious shop specializing in mourning stuff. H. T. Webster, a Tomahawk, Wis., boy who made good in the city.

A taxi full of midgets. Raymond Hitchcock back in town from touring. Girls who slip away to the walk behind the public library for a smoke. Dan, the telescope man. See Old Sirius, the dog star—5 cents. That ubiquitous society girl—Betn something-or-other.

All the musical instrument stores goody, goody, have marked down their saxophones. The legless news vendor at 42d st. and Broadway. Always there in the wind and the rain. Howling of murder and a world wet with tears. Lew Fields' profile suggests the Flat Iron building.

Leonard Bergman, who managed A. L. Erlanger's affairs. Times sq. responds to its summer manner. Clerks hanging to doorway awning ropes. Hatless men dart back and forth to soft drink parlors. The aristocratic vagabonds perch along the benches in the open places—to nod and dream.

Actors "at liberty" who would never admit it. And why should they? The smart talkers still clot around the Palace. Auto horns that sound like the wail of lost souls. Twelve years ago Irene Castle had launched the marmoset craze. What an idea that was!

MEN with nothing to do have strange fancies. I met a retired old fuss-budget today who had read a cabled dispatch of the invention of a solution that destroyed everything it touches. He had spent a sleepless night trying to figure out what they keep it in. And now he's got me doing it.

EVERY theatrical producer at some time or other spanks the critics. This season George M. Cohan turned a few across his venerable knee. He did not relish what they had to say about an opus of his. Yet Cohan has had no many successes that a panning should prove at least an innovation. Most of us a few years out of short pants can remember the days when Cohan was universally hailed as "a Dud-mouthed hoofer." But it so happened he had something to say, and he was heard. He stands out, in my opinion, like a clear-cut cameo, as the cleverest all-around man the American theater has produced. And he should be agitated this late in life by a few bricks.

IT is the fashion to refer to certain critics as belonging to the Smart Alec school. Yet when one considers the monotony of theatrical attendance for a season of indeterminable nights one is mystified critics can retain even a shade of what Mr. Woollcot, the stage-struck meanie, terms "elfin humor."

SOMEBODY writes to know why it is that with scarcely any exceptions no championship prize fighter has ever been the father of a son. I wouldn't know about that.

A "PALOOKA" in pugilism is a ham-and-egger fighter—one who fights preliminary battles for a small purse. Nobody seems to know where the word was coined. But it is a descriptive punch. Imagine having dinner at the Ritz with a "palooka."

AVIATION has been a death blow to embryonic hoboes. Riding rods or brakebeams on freight trains is dull stuff to imaginative youngsters there days.

200 miles an hour or more, will drop light bombs to clear the decks of guns and crew, wiping out all the anti-aircraft machinery.

Then will come the heavy bombers, protected by smoke screens that their swifter friends have laid down. They will drop bombs containing as much as 5000 pounds of deadly TNT, as many as needed.

SMOKE—THE FIGHTING PLANE'S PROTECTION

In a recent experiment, after the machines with their light bombs had finished, instead of merely clearing the decks of anti-aircraft guns they had sent the ship to the bottom. No heavy bombs were necessary.

Don't you think these three pictures ought to persuade our Govrnment to buy airships that cost seventy-five THOUSAND dollars instead of buying battleships that, with coal-tenders and other accoutrement, cost seventy-five MILLION dollars each.

Isn't it better to buy inexpensive submarines to attack from below, and cheap airplanes to attack and destroy from above, instead of costly, useless battleships?

Don't you suspect corruption somewhere when you see public officials persuaded to continue the purchase of $75,000,000 battleships which are nothing more than helpless targets for airplanes and submarines of other countries?

Write to your two Senators and to your Congressman if you think this country should spend enough money on airplanes and submarines to keep this nation really prepared.
